Mr. Trine's books have helped thousands turn failure to success, for they arouse a conscious vital realization of powers heretofore unsuspected. They show you how to use your mind, how to shape your thoughts to your best advantage. They have been translated into more than a dozen languages and have had a sale of almost a million copies.

They make ideal gift books for the young in pointing the way to the healthy mind that builds the healthy body; for the aged in restoring self-confidence and creating cheerful optimism to brighten declining years.

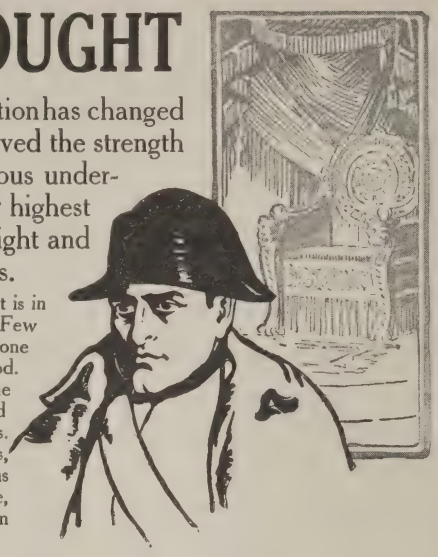
The POWER of THOUGHT



Thought wisely directed and translated into action has changed the destiny of nations. Napoleon repeatedly proved the strength of his ambition in the attainment of his tremendous undertakings. In your power lies the fulfillment of your highest aims provided you have trained yourself to think right and to put to right use the fruit of your best thoughts.

Ralph Waldo Trine's books inspire you to bring out the best that is in you. They are known and read throughout the civilized world. Few writers even of the most popular fiction have a larger audience, and none can boast the accomplishment of more widespread and lasting good. Grateful letters from all parts of the world come daily to Mr. Trine assuring him that his books have turned failure to success and awakened to conscious, vital realization powers until then dormant in his readers.

If you have still to discover the way to your own greatest powers, if you have a son or daughter about to assume life's more serious duties, if you have a friend who can be helped by wholesome advice, Ralph Waldo Trine, in the books below, has a message of inspiration that has encouraged a multitude to better living.

The General List

By REGINALD BLISS

BOON, THE MIND OF THE RACE; A Literary Surprise. With an Ambiguous Introduction by H. G. Wells. Illustrated. 12mo. Net, $1.35

Whosoever has read Henry James and felt that he was just a little confused by Mr. James's subway sentences, whosoever knows books but does not let bookishness prevent his enjoying a burlesque upon them; whosoever likes a salad of literary adventures with the sauce of shrewd observation of human life today—all the sophisticated readers of books and men, will find this curious new book a perfect mine of brilliant observations, with a mystery about its author. The full title is: "The Mind of the Race; The Wild Asses of the Devil; and The Last Trump." Mr. H. G. Wells writes an introduction in which he presents these literary remains of Mr. Boon as something out of the expected. If for nothing else THE MIND OF THE RACE would live and delight readers by its serio-comic account of the poor little devil who was sent out of the warm and pleasant places of hell to this chilly, foggy earth to find the devil's wild asses—and shiveringly followed them into many surprising places, including Parliament, where he found them most successfully masquerading as Personages.

By MRS. T. P. O'CONNOR

DOG STARS: Some Luminaries in the Dog World. Many illustrations in color by Will Rannells. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Mrs. O'Connor—wife of the brilliant Irish journalist, and herself an American, author of "Little Thank You," etc.—has always been a profound lover of dogs, and has owned several which she has bought, or which have been given to her, because of their out-of-the-usual qualities. She tells feelingly the most entertaining stories of their adventures and their traits. From the aristocratic dog who protected the unfortunate and condescended to statesmen and whose handshake was a privilege coveted by more than one famous Englishman, to the impudent little rascal, who was always getting into trouble because of his unfortunate habit of nipping people's legs, their ways are highly different—and all amusing. It is the book of books for any man who, when he was a boy, owned a dog. With the dogs there enter into the book such famous people as Labouchere. The illustrations catch the spirit of the book; catch the very soul of the dogs.

By WILLIAM WINTER

VAGRANT MEMORIES. Fully Illustrated. Octavo. Net, $3.00

William Winter—perhaps the most famous and authoritative of American dramatic critics for nearly two generations, tells intimately of his associations with the drama, its participants and constituents. Reminiscent of famous actors, authors, managers and critics—the greatest who have graced our stage. A human document story—vividly and delightfully portrayed, of such beloved celebrities as William Winter, Lester Wallack, Edwin Booth, Augustine Daly, Henry Irving, Forbes-Robertson, Edward Hugh Sothern and Julia Marlowe. A tale of the pure and intellectual stage; the theatre of refinement. To one interested in the theatre as an Institution—an Institution dear to the people and as inseparably from society as the Church itself, this work will prove engrossing and a sweet and truthful interpretation. The reader will be amazed, not only at the well-known facility of Mr. Winter, but also at the wealth of allusion, the memory that is the handmaid of stage-lore.

By A GERMAN WHO REBUKES GERMANY

I ACCUSE (J' Accuse!) 12mo. Net, $1.50

"World-wide interest and curiosity have been aroused by the book entitled 'J' Accuse,' a bitter arraignment by a German of the German war party." So begins a new story in the New York Times, an account which appeared before the publication of "J' Accuse" in America. So vastly important is the book that the Times scoured Europe till it got a copy. Its title is the famous phrase uttered by Zola regarding the Dreyfus case. The author, in order to get out his book, had to go to Switzerland, where it was first published. He denies that Germany and Austria are "the victims of aggression" and asserts that the people of those nations are the dupes of the war-parties. Says the author in his introduction, "The German nation has been ruined and blinded that it might be driven into a war which it never desired. That it might be 'freed' it has been enslaved. To break this spell, to liberate the nation from its 'liberators,' I have written this book. A true son of Germany I see my blinded motherland staggering toward the abyss." The author goes into the greatest detail of the political blinding of Germany, particularly accusing the Crown Prince and the Chancellor, Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg.

TENNIS AS I PLAY IT

Cloth. 8vo. Net, $2.00
Full Leather 8vo. Net, $3.00

More than seventy photographic illustrations, with elaborate comments on each detail of them by the author—The most important outdoor book of the year!

Besides commenting, in the elaborate captions to the many illustrations, upon every detail of his peculiar methods of play—which have made him perhaps the world's greatest tennis player—Mr. McLoughlin tells fully and frankly, in chapters entertainingly dotted with anecdotes from his experience in games from Europe to the Fiji Isles, just what things in tennis he has by experience found best. Stand and strokes, the new American service, the new value of back-hand, courts and rackets and tennis garments and balls, how to train, the mental attitude necessary for success, the relation of improving one's game to having pure fun out of the game—all these he tells for players young and old. Its suggestions are revelations as to the possibility of tennis.

By NORMAN ANGELL

THE WORLD'S HIGHWAY. A study of America's position in the great scheme of the World's History, with particular reference to the part the United States must play in effecting the neutralization of the Sea. 12mo. Net, $1.50

In this book the famous author of THE GREAT ILLUSION turns his attention to the problems of today and tomorrow imposed upon the world and the United States in particular by the great conflict. Mr. Angell is a very close student of affairs and brings to this new work a broad perspective, creating much food for thought in the extremely new points of view which he presents.

By WILLIAM R. LIGHTON

HAPPY HOLLOW FARM. Fully Illustrated 12mo. Net, $1.25

Some years ago, an Omaha newspaperman decided that the grind of the city was merely an endless and futile treadmill. He knew little of farming but much of covering assignments, and he set himself to cover the assignment of making life free for himself and his family. He studied, observed, finally bought a farm in Arkansas, in the Ozark hills. It was run-down after years of careful mismanagement by one of the old-line farmers, who knew agriculture too well to study any new-fangled notions. Within a few years it was paying magnificently; the city man and family had a home that was happy and free as a hillside breeze; and all the health that the city has sucked away had come buoyantly back. . . . Such was the story of the Lightons. As first told in a brief form in a magazine, some time ago, it aroused so much attention that it brought thousands of letters and hundreds of visits from people from points as far distant as Japan and New York, who wished to find the way to freedom for themselves. Since the writing of that article, Happy Hollow Farm has greatly improved; Mr. Lighton has learned many new wrinkles; and far more than before he can now point out the way to freedom and happiness—as he does, in this book. . . . While farming, Mr. Lighton has lost none of his craft as a writer, and his books "The Letters of an Old Farmer to His Son," and the "Billy Fortune" stories have charmed thousands.

SONGS OF THE WORKADAY WORLD 12mo. Net, $1.00

Songs of miners and cow-punchers, sailors and wanderers from every odd corner of the globe; songs of a real man's man, with the swing of a racing car and a tang of the outdoors.

By W. L. BRUCKMAN

THE GLORY OF BELGIUM. Illustrated with twenty plates in color Quarto. Boxed. Net, $5.00

The fascinating chronicles of Belgium's long history and the glory of her beauty—quaint streets and noble buildings—are here preserved in color prints and text prepared a short time before the Great War broke out. Some of the most beautiful of the buildings and most ancient of the villages here shown have been destroyed; all of them are here shown with a vividness which no mere magazine articles can approximate. Among the towns described are Bruges, Ghent, Antwerp, Brussels, Louvain, Tournai, Liege Namur, Dinant, etc. Mr. Bruckman's pictures in color, with their soft tones and exquisite appreciation of both architecture and lively street life, are particularly well suited to the subject.

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

KINGS, QUEENS AND PAWNS. Impressions of War in Castles and in Camps. 12mo. Net, $1.50

As an emissary of the Red Cross Society of America, Mrs. Rinehart was accorded exceptional opportunities and facilities for observation. And of course that was all the author of THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE, THE MAN IN LOWER TEN, and other equally clever books required to make this narrative absorbing in interest. But the outstanding quality of this book is its heart interest—for Mrs. Rinehart writes with all the sympathy and affection of an American woman—a mother of sons.

By CLEVELAND MOFFETT

SAVING THE NATION: A ROMANCE OF CONQUEST AND VICTORY: U. S. A., 1921 A. D. Fully and Graphically Illustrated. Small octavo. Net, $1.50

A few months ago wiseacres declared a great European war to be beyond the realm of the possible—to-day many scoff at the idea of an invasion—to say nothing of the conquest—of the United States. In a thrilling narrative, romantic to a degree, Cleveland Moffett invades, conquers and saves the nation. The book is not only plausible, but it has stood the test of severe military and tactical criticism. It deals not with fanciful places and people, but with our own best known and most beloved cities and with the well-known people throughout the nation. It is a clarion call to preparedness.

ANONYMOUS

THE RECORD OF NICHOLAS FREYDON. Autobiography. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Who is—or was—Nicholas Freydon? Is this fact or pure fiction? It purports to be an autobiography of a man who came from Australia to London, went through frightful poverty, climbed in journalism, met the greatest men of the hour, and but lately returned to Australia and the free bush. It presents a highly vivid view of London life—political and journalistic, the sordid life of the streets and the aspirations of a young man. THE RECORD OF NICHOLAS FREYDON as recently published in England, has roused a furore there—and no one has been able to guess the mystery of the authorship.

Said the London Evening Standard (in a column review headed WHO IS NICHOLAS FREYDON?): "We cannot answer the question, though internal evidence would lead us to suggest, if suggestion were prudent, the name of a well-known novelist. . . . This is so very human a document that the phrase might have been reserved for it. . . . When we ask who he is, we are thinking he must be somebody of unusual experience, skill in expression, and interest in life."

By IRVIN S. COBB

PATHS OF GLORY. Impressions of the War Written at and Near the Front. Picture Jacket. 12mo. Net, $1.50

Famous though Cobb is as the author of BACK HOME, EUROPE REVISED, etc., nothing he has done is of greater importance than his account of the Great War, and as a corollary no account of the Great War is more human and dramatic. While Mr. Cobb was in Europe, the cables carried dozens of stories about his capture by the Germans, his incarceration in a German fortress, his later release; his observations with the Germans at the front, in Belgium and elsewhere, his glimpses of the Allies, and his famous interview with Lord Kitchener. His articles based on these experiences are now collected in PATHS OF GLORY. As with all of Cobb's brilliant writing, three elements mingle and by contrast strengthen each other—the sympathetic picture of the tragedy of homeless Belgian women and children; the striking narrative and incisive descriptions of the actual fighting; and the humor that underlies the tragedy, particularly the humor of Cobb's own misadventures.

By ALEXANDER MACKINTOSH

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN: An Honest Biography. Octavo. Net, $3.00

Mr. Chamberlain's was a great career, both politically and personally, and Mr. Mackintosh followed it with close personal acquaintance for over a quarter of a century. He gives it all here, with an impersonality most rare in biographies—gives Mr. Chamberlain's faults, inconsistencies, errors as well as his splendid virtues and picturesque traits and inborn qualities as a leader. He follows Mr. Chamberlain from his first days of school and screw-manufacturing, through his days as the most famous politician in England, to the end. Particularly does he consider Mr. Chamberlain's relations with such men as Gladstone, Lord Salisbury, Balfour, Campbell-Bannerman; and his personal characteristics as orator and scholar, friend and father.

By MRS. ALEC-TWEEDIE

WOMEN THE WORLD OVER Octavo. Net, $3.00

With many illustrations.

Mrs. Alec-Tweedie, the clever author of "America as I Saw It," "Mexico as I Saw It," etc., who has roamed all through the world, with an observing eye and a lively smile, here gives her shrewdest serious observations about what women, as a whole, are trying to do today, with caustic little comments upon their foibles as well as with quick sympathy for their ideals. She makes lucid the differences between women of various lands; and she offers startling suggestions for revolutionary thoughts, such as "Should Women Propose?" and "Why Not Have Independent Titles for Brilliant Women?"

By FORD MADOX HUEFFER

THE HISTORICAL SENSE AND THE WAR. A reply to Publications of the Independent Labor Party. The Union of Democratic Control, Mr. George Bernard Shaw and German Official Propaganda.
12mo. Net, $1.00

Mr. Hueffer with that rare comprehension which distinguishes his earlier book, "When Blood Is Their Argument," here applies in equally lucid fashion the facts of history to the present war situation. Basing his conclusions upon a complete abhorrence of war as conducted today, Mr. Hueffer first sets out Germany's responsibility because of her "Blood and Iron" doctrine and then deals with the great mission of France to the World. In the appendix Mr. Hueffer pays his respects to George Bernard Shaw and other pamphleters.

By THOMAS F. A. SMITH, Ph. D.

THE SOUL OF GERMANY 12mo. Net, $1.25

Dr. Smith has for twelve years been English lecturer in the University of Erlangen, Bavaria, and he here gives a profound study of the German people from within, as during the period 1902-1914 he has worked with them, played with them, lived with them. He brings to the English-speaking world an unrivaled picture of Teuton ideals and daily life. He makes real the professor, the student, the solid burgher, the gilded lieutenant or ponderous colonel in his private life. The German home, schools, religion, national character, attitude toward peace; his dueling, drinking; his ideal of love; his tendency toward crime and divorce as compared with that of other nations; and the like; these he expressed in a book forceful and intimate.

SEARCHLIGHTS A Play in Three Acts 12mo. Net, $1.00

England of 1914-1915, England of the first days of the Great War; a young officer of the Guards who marches away, leaving a girl behind him; and, most touching and most pathetic of all, a German-born Britisher who gives up his German name, German investments and German friendships in order to be true to England; these are the characters in a thoroughly successful play of the Englishman's home when it was first in danger. Behind this great stress is a love story with an unexpected twist, and the absorbing love of a mother for her soldier son.

By HENRY ARTHUR JONES

THE LIE. Special Margaret Illington Edition, Illustrated with Photographs of Scenes in the Play as Produced in the Harris Theatre, New York. 12mo. Net, $1.00

"The best play by this dramatist in years; a great piece of playwriting. A human document of great theatrical value and tense dramatic virility."—New York Herald. Anything to escape from the impoverished gentility of Shale Abbey was the motto of Lucy, and she ensnared the lover of her patient big-souled sister, married him between two days, and tried to live out the black lie she had told about her sister. But the lie could not be lived out; in a scene which is one of the most powerfully dramatic things Mr. Jones has ever written in his years of internationally famous plays, the two sisters throw aside all the subterfuges of years and the good sister triumphs—and finds a love sweeter than the one she had lost.
With its delightful stage instructions and the splendid English of which Mr. Jones is master, THE LIE is as interesting for reading as for acting—and in the acting version, with Margaret Illington as star, it is one of the few New York successes of the 1914-1915 season.

By HENRY ARTHUR JONES

THE THEATRE OF IDEAS

A Burlesque Allegory and Three One-Act Plays: The Goal; Her Tongue; Grace Mary 12mo. Net, $1.00

In three short plays and a brilliant introduction, Henry Arthur Jones presents some of the best of the work which has made him internationally famous for both drama and thought. Modern dramatist though he is, he is not in sympathy with freakish new theatre movements, and in his introduction presents a lively burlesque on the crank theatre called "The Theatre of Ideas." Here, in a playhouse revolving so that its patrons may become dizzy, and thereby better suited to appreciate new ideas, the actors ride hobby-horses and the spectators stand upon their heads, in order to get a better view of the stage. Mirth-provoking though the introduction is, it is the true significance of all satire, in mocking the insincerities and puerilities of the intellectual cults. With this is a section burlesqueing Peace Movements of today. The college professors, says Mr. Jones, have been for years busy beating swords into plowshares, but so far have only succeeded in making three plowshares! The three plays are THE GOAL, the dramatic situation of a gallant old man meeting death gaily while a dance is going on in the next house; HER TONGUE, a very human and amusing farce of a woman who talks so much that she keeps people from liking her; and GRACE MARY, a strange and powerful play of Cornwall, and a love that survived death.

PUNCH CARTOONS. Quarto. Net, $1.50

Nearly a hundred cartoons on the war, on England and France and Germany and Russia, on the humorous little human episodes of the war and its grander national bearings, selected from among the many which have been appearing in the world's greatest humorous journal, "Punch."

By WEBSTER

OUR BOYHOOD THRILLS AND OTHER CARTOONS

4to. Net, $0.75

No cartoonist in the country has more delightfully combined racy humor with downright realism in his picture of our daily life than has Webster, whose daily cartoons are the feature of the New York Globe and a number of other papers throughout the country. Here are collected the best 100 of his cartoons for the past few years. The series particularly includes "Our Boyhood Ambitions," a series of amazingly funny pictures of what famous men wanted to do as boys—for example, Irvin Cobb's ambition to be a band-leader and how it would have worked out; "Life's Darkest Moment"—such embarrassing moments as the time when you were hauling the family clothes to the washerwoman and the school teacher and your best girl passed you; with various cartoons on poker, automobiles, boasting, and the other high lights of daily life. . . . Mr. Webster's cartoons may be collected in a book that will live on and make the most delightful of gifts because he does not deal with timely matters of politics, but with those eternal truths of daily custom which so delight all of us.

By EDGAR WHITAKER WORK

THE FOLLY OF THE THREE WISE MEN. Illustrated and Decorated, and with Jacket in Color, by C. B. Falls. 12mo. Net, $0.75

A little book filled with wisdom and with beauty as regards both its word and its dress; filled with the spirit of the Holidays, and a message of optimism and humanity. It is the story of those Three Wise Men who were the first to greet the Saviour; the story of the day when they made the grievous error of neglecting the good little deeds of daily human kindness which are our steps of Eternity, and of the lesson they had to learn before—purified and glad—they could pass on to give the first Christmas presents that the world was ever to know; to give frankincense and myrrh sweetened with human kindness. . . . Not only for Christmas is there a message here, but for every day, especially in the hour of the Great War when, as in the days of Rome's decadence, the world needs a new Star and a new Hope.

PARODY, by Christopher Stone.	16mo. Net, $0.40
CRITICISM, by P. P. Howe.	16mo. Net, $0.40

To the understanding reader, who does not carelessly glance over anything that chances to be put before him, literature falls into certain clearly marked classes. But what these classes denote, precisely, is unknown to a majority of readers, and to most of the rest it is a subject for such dry, academic classification that the literature studied loses its magic interest. This series, written for understanding readers, yet very distinctly not written for the dusty libraries of savants, so takes up one by one the various classes, that the "average intelligent reader" may increase his joy of books. SATIRE, by Gilbert Cannan, author of "Old Mole," "Round the Corner," etc., translator of "A. O." Barnabooth" and "Jean Christophe," finds in Swift, Juvenal and Voltaire the ideals of satire, and shows what field there is for satire to-day. HISTORY by R. H. Gretton, will be a revelation to those who are still bound to the belief that history consists of dates and names of kings. He shows its proper function as a study of the general conditions of life in each generation—so much so that realistic novels are, with their revelation of life and customs, more truly history than lists of dates. THE EPIC, by Lascelles Abercrombie, indicates the reason why epics are not written to-day. COMEDY, by John Palmer, clears up the vexed questions of why we laugh, the difference between French comedy and English, and offers rich suggestions for the possibilities of comedy to-day.

By PROFESSOR JOHN ADAMS

MAKING THE MOST OF ONE'S MIND. A Guide for Every Student.
12mo. Net, $1.00

Something of the place occupied in a previous generation by Todd's Student Manual is given to this book of the times, which sets forth from the author's wide experience with students of today the practical means of making the years of study pay dividends in spiritual and mental mastery. With practical pointers on how to study, how to memorize, how to take notes at lectures, how to divide one's time, how to prepare for examinations, is combined a revelation of what the student years might be—and so often are not, to the careless youth.

By GEORGE A. DICKINSON

YOUR BOY: HIS NATURE AND NURTURE New Edition 12mo. Net, $1.00

This book recognizes the inalienable rights of every boy. The author goes on the healthy presupposition that in reality there are no bad boys. The trouble is that the boy has not been understood and his irrepressible energy has often been mistaken for an evil disposition. Give him patience, confidence, guidance, and he will not fail to respond. How this should be done is delightfully described in these live chapters by one of the best advocates of the boy. His common-sense is as convincing as his knowledge.

By ALICE DUER MILLER

ARE WOMEN PEOPLE? 12mo. Net, $0.60

Lively rhymes for suffrage times, by the poet laureate of the suffrage cause who, with the quick melody of her verses and their hidden force of sarcastic common sense reminds the reader of those delightful yet meaningful songs of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Once in a while some dry and humorless anti declares that suffragists have no sense of humor—otherwise they would stay home and not bother. Here is the perfect answer. And for lovers of gay little verses, whether at all interested in suffrage or not, here are songs that will set him or her a-smiling and toe-tapping.

By "HIM"

HOW IT FEELS TO BE THE HUSBAND OF A SUFFRAGETTE
Illustrated by May Wilson Preston. Boards. 12mo. Net, $0.50

A lively little book packed with earnest meaning. Addressing the men on the sidewalk who jeered "Go home and mind the baby" when he marched with the suffragettes, a real husband of a famous suffragette tells how much more fun it is to have one's wife a suffragette—and why. The increased companionship, the increased intelligence —and the increased sense of humor, are, he declares, the best arguments for suffrage. A book witty and wise.

By ARNOLD BENNETT

MARRIED LIFE Boards. 12mo. Net, $0.75

This little book, formerly published as "The Plain Man and His Wife," has more philosophy in it than the dusty volumes of the stodgy sages, though its tone is as pleasantly familiar as a chatting friend.

The sound of the alarm clock. . . . Wakening to groan, "Another day? What a bore!" . . . The drudgery of the office. . . . Returning to a wife who is only a wife. Such is the Average Man's opinion of his own average day. But it's his own fault. Especially his view of his wife. Life can be made to flower for Mr.—or Mrs.—Average Man by the use of a little imagination and unprejudiced self-criticism. Arnold Bennett amusingly but forcibly tells Mr. Average Man (who may be a clerk or a clergyman or a prince or a pauper) just how he can get better acquainted with himself, his wife, his business, and find that savor of fun which is always waiting if we have the imagination to find it.

By ARNOLD BENNETT

FRIENDSHIP AND HAPPINESS Boards. 12mo. Net, $0.75

An essay in happiness is this, for all the year round, but especially for the Yuletide's memory-time. First published under the title of "The Feast of St. Friend," it has given its wise message to thousands.

Do the feasting and antics of Christmas captivate you less than once they did? If so, then friendship—that spirit and explanation of holidays—has lost most of its wonder for you; then happiness is less happy. The road to friendship—which means happiness—is one that Bennett himself has traveled triumphantly. For he is quite as much the philosopher as the world-famous realistic novelist—witness both the success of his "How to Live on Twenty-four Hours a Day" and that greater success of his own pleasant life. He here points out that road to friendship.

THE WAY OF THE RED CROSS 12mo. Net, $1.00

Preface by QUEEN ALEXANDRA, reproduced in facsimile of her writing and stationery.

A full account of the work the gallant Red Cross of the allies have been doing in the Great War, with many stories—touching and gay, illuminating or making the sudden excited tears come—from the actual history of their dramatic days. Both what they have done and exactly how they do it is told in a rather complete manner. Of the book, Conan Doyle says: "Admirable! I hope it will be a huge success." Says Arnold Bennett: "Very well done; very many of the facts recorded are not only touching but inspiring."

By JOSEPH K. GRIFFIS

Chief Tahan—whose civilized name is the Reverend Joseph K. Griffis—is one of the most inspiring and interesting figures upon that modern forum, the Chautauqua lecture circuit. Dressed in his full costume as an Indian chief, straight and piercing-eyed and black-haired as a boy, though he is over sixty, he relates not only superb real-life adventures, but also startles his audiences with well-backed-up assertions that the "barbarous" Indians are in many ways happier and wiser than the pale-faces. In this autobiography he has at last told complete that fascinating life story of his. Born a real Indian, fighting with the warriors on the trail, wandering through many cities, becoming a Salvation Army captain, then a full-fledged minister, then a popular lecturer, he has led a red-lettered life, which he describes in a book that is not only absorbing as a novel but is also a genuine "human document."

By HERBERT KAUFMAN

NEIGHBOURS. 12mo. Net, $0.75

Herbert Kaufman is one of the best preachers of the age—and yet he is a preacher without church, without creed, save the creed of efficiency and understanding. He hits hard, in battling phrases, and he uncovers our little hypocrisies so that, with the wrappings torn from our hearts, we may be happy men and women again, instead of machines. If you miss the miraculous humanity in every human being about you—in the shy girls that work for you, the drab little wren of a man beside you in the street cars, the noisy bellowing urchin below your window, then Kaufman has a wonderful message for you in "Neighbours." One after another, he takes folks from the streets and brings them into your presence. Their rags fall away, and they stand forth your own people, your own kin. You cannot forget his way of telling you, and at the end of the book the foggy crowd has changed into living souls.

WHY I AM A SOCIALIST. A New Edition with a Prefatory Chapter on Socialism and the Great War. 12mo., Net, $0.50

What has Socialism got to say about the Great War? Has the whirlwind of that conflict blown away the theories of the Communists? No! says Russell. It is the only way to stop the Great War and its probable sequels. And he tells why, with a terrific picture of what he himself has seen of the battlefields of the war. This new preface gives added value to a book widely acclaimed as the most human expression of Socialism—the frank, picturesque statement of how a great newspaperman, seeing the social evils in the incidents he had to report, could find no solution for them save in Socialism. "Mr. Russell's book is the most effective statement I have seen of the methods by which nearly all the surplus wealth of the nation is being concentrated in a few hands."—Chicago Herald.

JOLLY JAUNTS WITH JIM: THROUGH THE FIREPLACE. Illustrated with 20 Color Plates and Decorated Throughout by H. Devitt Wilson. Small 4to. Net, $1.25

On a cold and wintry afternoon Jimmy crept into his father's study with his dog Tag. Sinking into the depths of the comfortable Morris chair, drawn up before a bright, crackling log fire, he lapsed into a brown study. Before long the funniest little man in the world came from out the flames and invited Jimmy and Tag to accompany him on a trip through Flame Land, which they were very glad to do. They found this fairy realm inhabited by the most wonderful people imaginable, and they had a perfectly glorious time, even if Tag did forget his manners when they were dining with the King and Queen. Such is the sum and substance of one of the most thoroughly delightful stories for little folks in many a long day, and very charmingly told in pleasing verse. The artist, inspired, no doubt, by their excellence, has turned out twenty really worthy illustrations, done into colors that harmonize perfectly with the wondrous lights and shades to be found in a really old-fashioned big log fire, besides which he has artistically decorated the book throughout.

THESE TWAIN. Jacket in Full Color. 12mo. Net, $1.50

During the past generations few books have so influenced literary opinion on both sides of the Atlantic as did "Clayhanger," in which Mr. Bennett gave with unsparing frankness the day by day life of a young man in a factory town—yet out of which he made a palpitating romance that was a revelation to many thousands of like young men who supposed that in their lives there was no romance. The story of "Clayhanger" was continued in "Hilda Lessways," and now at last, after several years, it is brought to a climax in THESE TWAIN, which is porbably by far the most important novel of 1915. . . . Those who have not read "Clayhanger" will find THESE TWAIN quite complete in itself. They will find here so masterly a story of married life today that it will interpret their own married life to themselves. It will make them understand the progress of the last decade or so, while all the while they will find themselves absorbed in the life of the Clayhangers as though it were their own family. . . . Those who have read "Clayhanger" and its sequel will need no urging to read THESE TWAIN beyond the bare announcement that here, at last, Mr. Bennett gives the married life of Clayhanger and Hilda; shows through what a morass of daily petty misunderstandings they must wade to reach the firm ground of understandings; shows the gradual development of George Cannon, of Clayhanger's sisters, of the changing Five Towns with the slow rebellion against mid-Victorian stuffiness. . . . The publication of THESE TWAIN is a thing which has been more eagerly awaited than any other literary event for years.

By W. SOMERSET MAUGHAM

OF HUMAN BONDAGE 12mo. Net, $1.50

A realistic story of a young man of today; one that any reader with the slightest interest in the realistic masters—in Bennett and Gissing and Zola—will find it really necessary to read. The disillusioned clearness of the descriptions are admirable. The characters are drawn with an acid wit and a deadly accuracy that makes one believe he has known them for years. The amount of knowledge about the various widely differing environments in which the central character finds himself is simply amazing. . . . English public school life; student life in Heidelberg; the Latin Quarter of Paris—without any of the time-worn old traditions as to the glamorous qualities of that existence; studying medicine in London; losing money and having to work as a floorwalker; practising medicine in a seaside town; and, finally, the realistic accounts of the young man's love affairs; these are the divisions of this genuinely remarkable novel by the distinguished dramatist and novelist.

OLD JUDGE PRIEST 12mo. Net, $1.25

Old Judge Priest—"the real American," central character in Mr. Cobb's "Back Home"—is again the hero of stories which make wonderful our own American drama and romance. Perhaps because he does not use any of the sentimentality of the Professional Southerner, Mr. Cobb makes his Kentucky folks the friends of all of us. The high place among all American writers which has been so enthusiastically given to Mr. Cobb is enhanced by this most interesting volume.

THE BRONZE EAGLE: A Story of Waterloo. Color jacket.
12mo. Net, $1.35

The author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "The Laughing Cavalier," "A Bride of the Plains," and many another high-colored historical romance has in her new novel a story especially suited to this year—the centennial of Waterloo. It is the story of "the hundred days"—from the landing of Napoleon, escaped from Elba, to the battle of Waterloo. Through it run many intimate pictures of Napoleon. . . . It is a story without a villain, though there is struggle a-plenty between three young men —an Englishman, a royalist and an adherent of Napoleon, all of whom are in love with the beautiful Crystal de Chambray. Their three-angled struggle, carried on during the terrific "hundred days," runs from a placid old-world drawingroom, a lonely inn at night, a hot chase to Paris, the bloody field of Waterloo, to England itself, where in the midst of the alien English the young Frenchmen continue their hot struggle for love.

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

12mo. Net $1.25

A rollicking story of love and mystery, adventure and society, intrigue and a dash of satire—with more than a dash of realistic description whereby the pleasant heroine becomes not a mere dummy figure of romance but a real person. . . . A girl is "broke"; weary of earning a drab living in a New York department store. She goes unhappily to sleep on the roof of a tenement house. A thunderstorm comes on, and the trap-door leading below has slammed shut. She passes anxiously on from roof to roof, finds a trap-door that she can open, and climbs down. In New York, the city of contrasts, it is often less than a block from tenement to palace—and she finds herself in the palatial house of a millionaire. There's a burglar there, too—and a mysterious young man who is, and then isn't, and then perhaps is, a burglar. And the result of her adventure is a summer colony of the needlessly wealthy, on an island off the coast of Maine; a curious job and still more curious employers; a masquerade ball that threatened to be tragic and proved comic, and a hundred other lightning changes which the reader will follow with the thrill of melodrama and the satisfaction of well-made romance.

By HAROLD BEGBIE

MILLSTONE. Picture Jacket and End Papers in Color. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The clever and forceful pen of the author of "The Rising Dawn," "The Cage," etc., has here been put to a nobler and more urgent service than ever before—the exposure of the White Slave Traffic as it still is, today, even after all the opposition. Mr. Begbie's facts are real facts; the story is founded on truth as on a foundation of rock. . . . But the book just as a story is remarkable. To a lonely hotel on the seashore comes a terrible old man who seems always to be brooding over his past. He wants always to talk about the need of the forgiveness of sins. The young engineer who is tne hero of the story—and whose gay love affair lightens and gives contrast to this strong story—tries to find the somber secret of the old man; and how he succeeds is told in dramatic recital that piles up dramatic scene on scene, all of them set against the roaring sea and the engineer's plucky master of steel and a girl's love.

By HUGH WALPOLE

THE GOLDEN SCARECROW 12mo. Net, $1.25

"If you love enough we are with you everywhere—forever"—that is the word of the little children that stupid people call "dead." Always here, playing in the room they loved. Such is the end of THE GOLDEN SCARECROW, the most original book by the author of FORTITUDE. It is the story of a dozen children living about a spacious old square, a square filled with leisure and the sound of leaves, in the heart of London. The son of a duke is one, and one the forlornly playing child of a housekeeper who drank and was untidy, but their lives were all bound together by the Friend—who is the Friend of Stevenson's child-verses—who in dangerous or unhappy moments comes to children and with his great warm arm guides them. . . . There is a wonderful fancifulness in THE GOLDEN SCARECROW, a mellow and gentle beauty; and a really remarkable ability to enter into the children's own world, where carpets are vast moors, and the fire whispers secrets, and the lashing out of a whip of wind suggests things vast and secret and perilous. He has "loved enough"; has so tenderly loved children and the little folk of the imagination that he has put into this book the quality which can never be quite plumbed—tenderness. And it is not the awkward tenderness of the person not born to write; but graceful and perfect and winning as a Greek vase.

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

LOT & COMPANY. Color jacket by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The author of "Midstream," "Down Among Men," "Red Fleece," etc., has turned from war and philosophy to make an exciting yet beautiful story of business and the sea and the romance of love. He wins his readers' sympathies immediately by the picture of a young man caught in the net of business, working for a firm who are equally powerful, hypocritical and dishonest. The sea calls the youngster. When he loiters by a wharf he can scarcely resist the charm of the steamers' whistles. He breaks away from the toils of "Lot & Company" and plunges with happy recklessness into the South Seas voyage of the good ship Jade, with its curiously assorted company of Lascars and Chinks and Squareheads, its ponderously luxurious owner and the slim dreaming young missionary and the strange woman of the deep eyes and the little child. What adventures the Jade found are surprising, and make such a story as will keep the love of the countless readers who are so unswervingly faithful to Mr. Comfort, and win the love of many readers who have not as yet learned his power and originality that mark him out from all other American authors.

TREASURE 12mo. Net, $1.25

W. Dane Bank a year ago wrote JAMES, a novel that gave its author place and moderate fame. For years before this same author, under another name, wrote a number of highly successful novels. THEASURE marks a development along the lines of JAMES—it is mellower and sweeter—and while holding all the attracting realism which characterized JAMES, it exhibits a deepened affection for all sorts of people. It is a happy novel without any of the thin softness of sentimentality—likewise free from harshness and coarseness.

SPRAGGE'S CANYON. Illustrated with Jacket and End Papers in Full Color, by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The distinguished and much beloved author of "Quinneys," "Blinds Down," "The Hill," etc., lived for years in California as a working ranchman and in the chaparral-covered mountains of California he lays his essentially American story. The background of the action is the heroic efforts of the pioneer ranchers to keep back the wilderness; to build up a land of homes; that, with the exciting secondary occupation of young George Spragge—collecting wild beasts and rattlesnakes for a zoo. Against the background is played out the rivalry of two women for young George—the fluffy and selfish girl from town who would lure him away from the ranch, whose making has cost the Spragges so many years of honored work; and the sturdy Samantha of the ranch, who loves him faithfully, quietly, with the look of outdoors in her eyes and the gold of outdoors in her heart.

THE MAN-TRAIL. Color Jacket and End Papers by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.25

Shadows of the northern tamaracks across the drifted snows, a log-cabin's yellow light along the trail ahead, from it the laughter of husky lumberjacks, with the twang of a fiddle and shuffling feet; a sneaking figure among the ice-sheated and rattling sumac bushes as a spy from the rival lumber company looks over the day's work; the howl of a distant wolf; a hurrying sleigh with a girl clear-eyed and warm sitting beside a gruff old man—this is the man's world to which the man-trail led a youngster from New York, whose big muscles had refused to fit comfortably and obediently into a creaking office chair in New York, but who followed the man-trail to battle and grimly hard work, quick blows and enmity—and then to love and success. The breath of the pines in a splendid story.

THE MIRACLE OF LOVE. Picture Jacket in Color. 12mo. Net, $1.25

If an English duke came to America, deliberately seeking to trade his title for a fortune, would you sympathize with him? Or with the girl whom he was trying to buy? But wait—There might be a case—Imagine a duke, young, charming, passionately clean, in love with all of youth's wondering-eyed fidelity, yet feeling himself forced to sacrifice himself for the family whose head he had suddenly become; feeling that, as a sacred duty, he had to build up the run-down old estate. Imagine him longing for a girl in England, while he raced through New York (staring curiously at skyscrapers and electrical sky signs), luxuriated on the Florida Keys, watched the society on a millionaire's yacht. Imagine an unexpected "miracle of love"—but you cannot guess the solution. Cosmo Hamilton—now lieutenant in the British Army, author of "The Blindness of Virtue," "The Door That Has No Key" and other most popular plays and novels—is famed for his skill in picturing scenes both of English society, and for the passion and verity of his love scenes.

THE RAT-PIT 12mo. Net, $1.25

A more powerful book by the navvy-genius who wrote "Children of the Dead End." Too genuinely brilliant a book to need any superlatives. From a two column review by Miss Hildegarde Hawthorne in the New York Times: "A summing-up, a condensation and intensification of the bitter life of poverty, told with a wild and touching beauty that has almost a folk quality. Picture follows picture and fate moves on resistlessly, unquestioned, unexplained. It is Donegal that makes the background of the earlier portion, and Norah, a child of 12, starving herself for her sick mother's sake, goes with the women to get yarn for the knitting. The biting wind, the snow, the freezing water through which the women must wade, how unforgettably they are set blowing and shivering on the page, so that the very spirit shivers! . . . A gentle thing and beautiful Norah is. She is happy 'when out in the open, listening to the birds singing and the wind running on the heather,' and her heart warms to all about her. She is as simple as some child in a fairy tale, but her own story is destined to be a grim and cold one. . . . Perhaps the most amazing thing about this book is that there is not a trace of sordidness in it. It is clear, fine and noble. The suffering and wrong and sorrow are all there, rags and dirt and desperate shifts. Yet what is most marked is this fine beauty, the purity that is not destroyed under the whole horror of the physical conditions. . . . To read this book is to add to your experience of life and your understanding of human beings, yourself among the rest."

THE TAMING OF ZENAS HENRY. Full Color Jacket by W. L. Jacobs.
12mo. Net, $1.25

The quaint characters of "Down East," and the kindly human hearts that hide under weather-beaten or shrewish faces, are in this comedy of Zenas Henry Brewster, the old bachelor fisherman who married Abbie Howland, and married with her good eatin' but a bad temper. As Zenas' old cronies, the three captains, derelicts from the high seas, with whom he once had smoked and yarned, are perplexed by his sudden attack of matrimony, he has to convince them of his wisdom by pretending that Abbie has all the mellowness of a cider apple. They believe him, and that so impresses Abbie that she does indeed become all the good things they believe her, and when she adopts a child, the three captains become adoring uncles, and the whole household is as happy as it is shrewd. The gay fantasy of Frank Stockton is in the picture of the three captains, and the "Down-East" atmosphere of Joseph Lincoln in the life of the Maine fishing village; and all through the book sentiment mingles with humor.

MINNIE'S BISHOP AND OTHER STORIES. Jacket in Full Color. 12mo. Net, $1.20

The rollicking spirit of Birmingham's "Spanish Gold" and "General John Regan" runs through all the stories of this new volume—except for the serious stories which deal with the sorrowing hearts and high hopes of the families where the sons have gone off to America. Quite as amusing as the title story, MINNIE'S BISHOP—the tale of a beruffled and frivolous lady who captures the heart of a bishop—is the amazing chronicle of the Geraghtys' pig, which ought to have been seized for taxes but, ably abetted by "them wild Geraghtys" themselves, eluded the tax collector, the police and, finally, a whole British gunboat sent to carry out the majesty of the law—which the same it had a lot less majesty after trying to crush the wiles of the pig.

By JOHN BUCHAN

THE THIRTY-NINE STEPS. Jacket in Full Color. 12mo. Net, $1.25

"I left the train at a little station set in the heart of a bog. It was a gorgeous spring evening, with every hill showing as clear as a cut amethyst. The air had the queer rooty smell of bogs, but it was as fresh as midocean, and it had the strangest effect on my spirit. I might have been a boy out for a spring-holiday tramp, instead of a man of thirty-seven, very much wanted by the police. I felt just as I used to feel when I was starting for a big trek on a frosty morning on the high veld." . . . It's a quiet paragraph from the midst of one of the pantingly breathless pages that follow the escape of Mr. Richard Hannay from the police and from the sinister brotherhood of the Black Stone. A chase that led from luxurious London chambers, where lay a murdered man, through the moors of Scotland with a cordon of motor cars and monoplanes drawn about him, into a road-mender's cottage, where he posed as a laborer, into the mysterious house where flashed out that dramatic Adventure of the Bald Archaeologist, into the presence of the First Sea Lord. It is a story whose every page thrills with a wonderful scape, each page so closely linked to the preceding that it will be impossible for any lover of brilliant mystery stories to rise from his chair till he has completed this triumph of plot and action and strange intrigue and lovable character-drawing.

By E. F. BENSON

It is the exquisite cleverness of such books as "Dodo" and "Dodo's Daughter," their sparkle of frivolous, uncannily original wit, which has made Mr. Benson famous; but with this cleverness is a big, quiet spirit of a man to whom love and loyalty and the ecstasy of great music are sacred. In ARUNDEL he chronicles a young man, engaged, addicted to croquet and nice ties, swathed in cotton wool—which was set fierily smouldering by a spark of real love, when back from India to England came Elizabeth, the cousin of the girl to whom he was engaged. In the vast nights scented with the old uneasy smell of the East, in the mazes of Wagner, in dawn rides with her understanding father, the Colonel, Elizabeth had developed the burning temperament that was hers, and that temperament shocked Edward out of all his croquet niceness. But with her birthright of a great love Elizabeth had an equal passion for loyalty, and to take her cousin's lover was unthinkable to her. How the lovers found an escape from this cul de sac makes a noble drama which shows Mr. Benson's highest powers. But it is not all high drama—joyfully amusing is his scornful picture of Elizabeth's fussy, selfish, ambling aunt, owner of the too, too comfortable country place called "Arundel."

Moving Pictures or the "Movies," as they have become known, have risen to such importance that for volume of business and capital invested they stand forth among the industries of America. The figures of the number of theatres, the daily attendance and the daily receipts are staggering. Yet of the inner workings of the production of plays no adequate story has been told until Charles Van Loan wrote these stories. He has spent months among the actual movie actors—and here are the moving stories of "Movie" people—the bustling manager, the haughty Eastern star, the broncho buster, the villain, the stage Englishman, the old prospector—all your friends from the stage and the screen.

What does responsibility do for a woman? This is the story of a woman who did not want to go into business, who found an enterprise forced upon her—and who made good. Pretty Elizabeth Thain was a normal, pretty woman, with pleasant little hopes for a husband and babies, but when her brother died she was left half mistress of an artificial stone company and partner with an inventor who was a delightful chap—but not a business man. So Elizabeth became the business man of the firm—and did not lose her ability to fall in love. CO-DIRECTORS is a novel eminently suited to this era of feminism.

COME OUT TO PLAY 12mo. Net, $1.25

For the sophisticated lover of the many-colored harlequinade that, every night, plays its antic and unconscious comedy under the street-lamps; for the world that understands the delicate art of hors d'œuvres and the slight, shimmering, softly woven, excited talk across the liqueur glasses; for the reader in whose memory the tag-end of a little French song rouses sudden bitter-sweet recollections of days perfect and afar—for this world of readers who prefer their fiction without obvious tricks for the simple-minded, COME OUT TO PLAY is a novel divinely meant. The drum of the marionettes, the lemon-colored columbine, a curling wraith of smoke that turns from blue to gray—such are the keynotes of this novel, which you will either fail to understand or find of a piquant delight.

The Story of Jacob Stahl, being three consecutive novels:
THE EARLY HISTORY OF JACOB STAHL
A CANDIDATE FOR TRUTH
and the new volume
THE INVISIBLE EVENT

Each volume separately: 12mo. Net, $1.35
The three volumes, boxed, in uniform sets only. Net, $2.50

The story of a young man of today, in three volumes which can be read separately or in sequence—wherein the "trilogy" is distinguished from the "three volume novel." A noble story it is, of constantly increasing merit—though the first volume was already so admirable that the London Post greeted it with "A very remarkable book which should place its writer at once in the forefront of modern novelists." . . . The story chronicles a man of imagination, temperament, who is indecisive, a little lazy, groping unhappily for the key to life—but at the last happily finding it. His faults and virtues are studied equally; he lives, a full-dimensioned and real person. . . . Life in a village, in an architect's office, in a social settlement, in an advertising office, starving in a London garret, getting back to life's ampler happiness in a seaside cottage; and all through it finding the love of women; Jacob Stahl is a figure large and inescapable.
The New York Times thus sums up the trilogy as a whole: "Although each of the three parts into which the history of Jacob Stahl is divided closes at a moment which marks a new beginning, they form what is practically one book. Yet, despite the great length of the story, Jacob himself is a person of whom we never grow weary. . . . It is a big piece of work that Mr. Beresford has accomplished—the successful presentation of a human being, growing, changing, reacting swiftly to the varying effects of his environment, yet retaining throughout his own individuality complete and unimpaired. The author might well stand on this achievement, even though he had never produced that other remarkable book, THE HOUSE IN DEMETRIUS ROAD. His style was good when he wrote THE EARLY HISTORY OF JACOB STAHL, but it has improved very greatly. The dramatic sense of which he once seemed a trifle afraid he now knows how to use and to control. Moreover, he has developed his gift for the suggestive phrase, at once summing up and illuminating all that went before. Some of these phrases there were in the first volume; the later two are full of them. And because he is still growing in power and artistry it is impossible to assign him to any fixed position in the line of the important realistic novelists of the present day. But that he does belong somewhere in the imposing line, near, perhaps, to Walpole and Bennett, rather than to Merrick or Onions or Galsworthy, is sufficiently proved by the trilogy of Jacob Stahl."

THE CITY OF PLEASURE Cloth. 12mo. Net, $0.50

A chorus of joy has greeted this, the first publication in book form in America of an early, fantastic, thrilling, whimsical novel by the great author of "Clayhanger" and "The Old Wives' Tale." It is the tale of a London super-Coney Island, and the machinations of two partners who wanted to get rid of one another. Of it, the New York Times says: "If Mr. Bennett or his publishers have any more tales like THE CITY OF PLEASURE concealed anywhere, it is to be hoped that they will bring them to light without further loss of time." Says the San Francisco Chronicle: "The happenings pile up in a very diverting way, and the denouement is clever and involved." Says the Philadelphia Evening Ledger: "A gay little volume of thrills and laughter."

THE VALLEY OF FEAR. A Sherlock Holmes Novel.
Illustrated by Arthur I. Keller, with Picture Jacket in full color by W. L. Jacobs. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The highest commendation for, and the best description of THE VALLEY OF FEAR is that it is a genuine Sherlock Holmes novel, with all the suspense of "The Sign of the Four" and "The Hound of the Baskervilles," and all the charm of personality which in Sherlock Holmes is added to his fascination as a detective. In an old English house is a murder mystery which seems insoluble. Guess as he may, the reader cannot find the surprising solution of the mystery which Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson unearth. Then the scene of the story suddenly changes to America and the murder syndicate of an anarchistic community. Here broods the shadow of horrible fear, but it is dissipated by the investigations and dramatic coup of a man who is as strange and interesting a character as any one whom Conan Doyle has depicted.

SPRAY ON THE WINDOWS 12mo. Net, $1.25

"J. E. Buckrose is a woman. It is important to know this in order not to be worried by the unmasculine way in which she reveals the inner and outer life of her heroine through those important years just preceding marriage. SPRAY ON THE WINDOWS could only have been written by a woman, specifically by a woman who had thought and felt a good deal about womanhood. Ann's dreams of marriage and the reality that followed are set off by contrast that rises at many places through the particular to the typical. She passes through crises that must be familiar to most women with 'Mrs.' before their names, even though in elopement with an accidental murderer and convict there is matter enough to give her story an individual and exciting tang. The end of her dreams finds her with enough good and solid reality to make up for the passing of them and leave a surplus. It is all very human, and rarely real in its optimistic view of things."—Baltimore News. . . . "A realistic, straightforward and altogether human story of a young girl's virginal fancies and marital experiences, and quite different from the current run of British fiction, as befits the author of 'A Bachelor's Comedy' and 'Because of Jane.'"—Philadelphia North American.

JAMES. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The story of the business buccaneer who had to "get ahead," no matter what it cost —to others. In both love and business he is so revealingly typical of many business men of today that the book created a tremendous sensation in England upon its publication. Many American papers carried long stories about it from their London correspondents, and the following are characteristic of the many exceedingly enthusiastic English reviews of the book:

"Every one will read it."—London Daily Chronicle.

"We hasten to salute a writer of power and insight. The book, brief but pregnant, flashes a life-story. . . . . James, the masterful school boy, James, the successful business man, James, the all-but-ruined, James, most compelling."—London Daily Mail.

"A fine piece of work; a study of the psychology of success."—Truth.

"JAMES makes the reviewer believe in modern fiction again. It has a freshness and sincerity that distinguish it at once from machine-made fiction."—The Westminster Gazette.

THE EAGLE OF THE EMPIRE. Illustrated, and with picture jacket and frontispiece in full color by The Kinneys. 12mo. Net, $1.35

This year, the centenary of the Battle of Waterloo, and the great year of the Great War, finds this romance, which is in Dr. Brady's best style, of particular timeliness. It is the story of Napoleon. The title refers to the eagle-standards which each of Napoleon's regiments carried, and for which men gladly gave up their lives. The central character, young Marteau, stands out as one of the most dashing and likeable of Dr. Brady's creations—a high ranking officer, who yet had the modesty of the peasantry. Guarding the door where the great Napoleon snatches a few hours of sleep, riding on a perilous survey of the enemy's disposition, going to prison when Napoleon is sent to Elba, safe-guarding the eagle till the hero shall return, fighting to the last hour of the immortal struggle of Waterloo, young Marteau's career is indeed romantic. He loves the daughter of a family of ancien regimé, whom his forefathers had served, and unexpected is the way in which he comes to be considered worthy of her hand. The background of the story is a carefully studied description of the times and the battles, and should be of particular interest in connection with the centenary of Waterloo.

THE WOODEN HORSE 12mo. Net, $1.25

This is the first publication in America of one of the most original of Mr. Walpole's powerful novels. The Cornwall, which he so loves, appears even more clearly here than in his famous FORTITUDE. It is a world of gray sea and salt-encrusted huts, moorland and cliffs that are haunted in the misty moonlight, but brave in the peace of long seaside afternoons. In this magic Cornwall is played out a drama of contrasts—the contrast between the Trojan family, snugly satisfied to rule its petty world, and the black sheep of the family, who comes home from long wanderings, mighty chested and tanned like leather, with a voice like the winds of the uplands, to ally himself with the dreamers and the fishermen against his conventional family.

By H. C. BAILEY

THE GENTLEMAN ADVENTURER 12mo. Net $1.25

Red and gold adventures of the Spanish Main, a tale so colored with piracy on the high seas, the mystery of the ancient city of the King of the Main, hidden away in the jungle, the tempestuous loves of the mad Isabella, that it gives to the Average Man, who is a little weary of the gray correctness of his Average life, the splendor of a great adventure. But it is not just blood and thunder, for Mr. Bailey, the brilliant author of THE SEA CAPTAIN and THE LONELY QUEEN is distinguished from almost all other romancers by understanding human nature, by making such real characterizations of his heroes, that they have that convincing vitality, the lack of which makes the old-fashioned roaring romance lose its popularity. Peter Hayle, quiet, neat, courageous, a gentleman by taste and a pirate by accident; Captain Luke Veal, the ox of the Main; Isabella of the yellow hair, sinuous as a snake, defiantly clad in the ruffles and silk stockings of a boy with ruffles across her breast, ready for any crazy exploit that would end her profound boredom with everything that was not scarlet and purple; deft little Marie the tender maiden who held Peter's honest heart in her white hands and kept it safe; Estevan, the golden crowned and cruel lord of the pirate fleets: the roaring crew of the Bully Helen; the slave-keeping burgers of Jamaica—a gallant company worthy of Stevenson at his best.

MUSHROOM TOWN. 12mo. Net, $1.25

The important place among all novelists of today given to Oliver Onions by his brilliant realistic novels, THE STORY OF LOUIE, GRAY YOUTH, etc., which have made him, like Hugh Walpole, everywhere discussed as a coming rival to Bennett and Wells, will be strengthened by this astonishingly different new book. Between the sea and the mountains, with a lone buzzard sailing in steady circles in a sky of larkspur blue, is a fisherman's village, and a holy peace broods over it. But the railroad is coming. Gangs are hammering all day, getting drunk at night, not ten miles away. A few vacationists find and gloat over the hamlet. The railroad shoots a tentacle into the town. Ferris wheels and mammoth piers evict the gulls. Excursionists pour from trains like ashes dumped from a cart. Civilization has come. Man has shown the dull mountains and dunes a thing or two! In making a whole town, a whole epoch, his hero. Mr. Onions has kept his individual characters clear. John Willie, strutting with his hands in his knickers; the gipsy girl whom life has sung like an old ballad; the hypocritical deacon, serving God and being tactful with Mammon; the brisk speculators—they live. Never was a book more instinctive with art.

By W. PETT RIDGE

THE HAPPY RECRUIT 12mo. Net, $1.25

The drama of the immigrant boy facing London or New York without father or mother is ten-fold greater than the favorite old story of the poor country boy coming to the city, because the immigrant lad has the tremendous handicap of his foreign tongue. Yet sometimes he fights his way through to success after a struggle whose most sordid parts are filled with the vigor of good human fighting, and whose success is the humanest of all victories. Such a story does W. Pett Ridge, that brilliant chronicler of London's byways and odd peoples and chatter of the streets, tell in THE HAPPY RECRUIT. He pictures Carl, the young Russian, as boy-of-all-work in a cheap French hotel, as a waiter and finally as a restaurant proprietor; in love and out, in work and out. And all the while Mr. Ridge, who is as much a realist as he is a teller of delightful tales set with humor, does not sentimentalize over his young friend, but tells the real story of a real fight for success. Not his the young hero of the Oliver Optic story, but a human being whose struggles are made the more poignant by being real.

An exciting story of the Great War, with a clean-cut American hero and heroine and impressive and timely descriptions of the raid on Luxemburg, charges of Uhlans, a spying Zeppelin, the operation of a battery of 42-centimeter guns, the setting up of the field wireless. At the outbreak of the war, the American girl and man were caught in Luxembourg, and they had to get away, and get away quick, because the colonel of a German regiment, who is mysteriously related to the Hohenzollerns, was trying to get the girl, and using his military power to put obstacles in her way. With a wild dash by motor and a wilder aeroplane flight (based on the actual flying experiences of Mr. Blighton, who is an aviator as well as an author), the girl gets through and the man gallantly fights his way out after her. Romance it is, gallant and clean romance, but it is carefully founded on the actual fighting of the Great War, and that gives to it a ring of truth as important as its good-story quality.

THE VEILS OF ISIS, AND OTHER STORIES 12mo. Net, $1.25

As the author of "Montes the Matador," Frank Harris firmly established his reputation as one of the most brilliant of all contemporary short-story writers, and here he shows his increasing power, his instinct for sharply dramatic situations and for strange and fascinating backgrounds. Each one of these short stories stands out as something unusually and definitely human and they are joy to the reader who appreciates the art of a writer to whom all the world is mystery and beauty. Among the short stories in this volume are: "The Veils of Isis," a high-colored story of the sacrifice of a young priest to love; "A Daughter of Eve," the narrative of the havoc played by a woman on a pearl schooner in the South Seas, warm with the allure of woman and glittering with the beauty of Southern nights; "The Ugly Duckling," a brilliant, latter-day fable for the man who cannot be satisfied in a humdrum life; "A French Artist," which has all the subtle wit and yearning of the Montmartre.

12mo. Net, $1.35

The author of "The Scarlet Pimpernel," "The Laughing Cavalier," etc., was born in Hungary, but she is today a resident of England, and she does not love Austria. She does love Hungary, and she resents that far-off mysterious government which comes to drag away the stalwart young men of the golden and far-horizoned plains for military duty which they neither love nor understand. This is a story of the days before the war, but the young hero is a conscript, ordered away for three years, while his sweetheart, she of the dancing eyes and gipsy blood and the soul of a passionate lover, is left alone, to be besieged by a hated suitor with money and a "pull." Such is the foundation of this romance, in which there is not only high color, but all of the Baroness's love for her own home land and its sturdy, fiery folk.

By WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT

Picture Jacket in full color by Modest Stein. 12mo. Net, $1.25

In the straight-ahead drama of its action, in its pictures of modern infantry and artillery, founded on Mr. Comfort's own experience as war correspondent and soldier, RED FLEECE is an absorbing story of the Great European War. But that is not its chief importance. Because he has been a soldier and because he has melted his own experience in the crucible of a powerful and original mind, Mr. Comfort has behind all his stories an almost prophetic vision of what it means that the world should be drenched with the horror of war today. Such a realization comes to the hero of the story, a young American war correspondent who goes out in the adventurous gaiety of youth to campaign with the Russians, and comes back a mature man, with the sorrow of the peasants making a somber new glory in his eyes. And here are the peasants themselves, fighting, as Comfort has seen them. Here they go, the meek sheep of the War Lord, into the red slaughter, singing the songs of a gentler harvest and more tender dawn. Love plays a strong and original part in RED FLEECE, for in a girl who has given her life, her mutinous eyes and smouldering dreams to the Russian Revolution, the young American finds a love whose nobility is in keeping with the drama of the Great War.

IF ANY MAN SIN. 12mo. Net, $1.25

An outcast from his church for a grievous sin, the Reverend Martin Rutland seemed to have lost the game of life just when he should have been beginning to realize that brilliant promise which was making him the most popular pastor of all the city. His father's heart was broken; his own hopes ruined. He determined to bury himself in the wilderness where the Church could never reach him; where he would never hear the healing name of Christ again. . . . But Church and love and the wondrous happiness of responsibility all did reach him, crossing the Rockies into the blind wilderness of mountain and pine and ice-robed river, and after a strange and dramatic life he found himself again a trusted and honored man among men. How he protected a child that was lost and friendless; how he fought for his own with the marauders among the tough prospectors; how his little cabin in the wilderness became the refuge of gentleness; how strangely love came back into his life—these are among the many interesting details in a story with the great popular elements of cleanness and strong action.

THE MAGIC TALE OF HARVANGER AND YOLANDE

12mo. Net, $1.35

How may one herald the utter charm and silver-wrought beauty of this mediæval tale from the Land of Heart's Desire? The London Graphic, in a column review, says: "Here are settings forth and tourneys, secret chapels and magic swords, knights courteous and knights orgulous, rivers to be crossed, fair words, the sounds of bells, of song, the fluttering of pennons and the shining of armor. How Harvanger set out on the quest to find the Best Thing in the World; how he wooed Yolande in the Fair Valley and married her in the minster of Long Whitewall; how he reigned in that burgh after slaying Paranides, that crafty knight all one flame of steel and crocus—these are told in a book whose prose seems ever about to blossom into poetry." Whoso loves beauty, whoso loves clean knightliness, will find them in this exquisite tale.

THEISM AND HUMANISM. The Gifford Lectures

Octavo. Cloth. Net, $1.75

These lectures attracted large audiences when they were delivered, and they created considerable interest not only on account of the distinguished author but also because of the subject. Mr. Balfour very impressively points out that the naturalistic interpretation of life fails to do justice to the permanent value of human effort. On the other hand, the theistic interpretation not only does this but gives it an adequate setting. The argument from design is not discredited but made more emphatic by aesthetics, ethics and scientific truth. The deeper reading of external nature as well as of the mind and soul of man leads the author to lay the stress not on adjustments and adaptations but on the character of the results obtained. The argument from design thus becomes the argument from value. The highest conception of God is shown to include not only the metaphysical emphasis on His all-inclusive unity, but also the religious demand for the ethical personality. These luminous discussions which are conducted from the point of view of common sense are constructive rather than critical in their purpose. They appeal to the philosopher as well as to the plain man, and will easily take a place among the noteworthy contributions to theological thought.

PRACTICAL AND SOCIAL ASPECTS OF CHRISTIANITY

12mo. Net, $1.25

These lucid and searching studies on the Epistle of James are based on accurate and up-to-date scholarship and a discerning knowledge of present needs. The author is convinced that this early Epistle has much to say about Christianity in its practical aspects and in these chapters he interprets its message with his characteristic ability, and shows how the Gospel of Christ speaks the word of authority and blessedness. No writer of the New Testament has emphasized the essential democracy of Christianity, the genuineness of faith, the imperativeness of conduct and the imperiousness of duty like James. Prof. Robertson makes good use of the rich findings of papyri to throw light on the strengthening counsels in this Epistle. His chapters will be found very helpful.

THE BEARING OF RECENT DISCOVERY ON THE TRUSTWORTHINESS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT. Octavo. Net, $3.00

Professor Ramsay has revolutionized the study of the New Testament and especially of Paul through his invaluable series of books. Whatever he says is the result of original investigation. He began his studies years ago with a prejudice against the authenticity of the New Testament, but, true scholar that he has always been, he was influenced by facts and readily revised his conclusions so that he is now one of the foremost upholders of the value and validity of the New Testament writings. The present volume may be regarded as an autobiographical confession. It is of great value because we see the processes of thought by which far-reaching conclusions were attained. He furnishes evidence in detail and enables us to see how inscriptions and papyri which have lain for centuries in obscurity have appeared at the crucial time to upset false positions in scholarship and to establish beyond cavil or dispute the intrinsic reliability of the New Testament message. This volume of an honored scholar is one of the landmarks of New Testament learning.

ATLAS OF THE HISTORICAL GEOGRAPHY OF THE HOLY LAND.
Folio, Sixty Maps in Color. Net, $7.50

Designed and edited by George Adam Smith, D.D., LL.D., Litt. D., Principal of The University of Aberdeen. Prepared under the direction of J. P. Bartholomew, LL.D., F.R.S.E., F.R.G.S.

Principal Smith's Historical Geography of the Holy Land has taken a secure place as the most authoritative book on the subject. The fact that this volume is now in its seventeenth edition is of itself a strong proof of its really great value for a large and thorough knowledge of the Bible. His comprehensive and descriptive survey is based on personal acquaintance with the land, intimate knowledge of the explorations and discoveries of the last thirty years, and a recognition of the finest results of Biblical criticism. The long delayed Atlas, which has been in preparation since 1894, will be published in the fall. It will contain sixty maps, which were prepared under the direction of J. G. Bartholomew, LL.D., F.R.S.E., F.R.G.S., cartographer at the Edinburgh Geographical Institute. The united labors of two such skillful authorities have produced an Atlas which will be found absolutely indispensable by all students of the Bible. Among the noteworthy features of these maps are the recognition of the physical and political aspects of the early world; a consideration of the economic and historical geography of the land, exhibiting divisions, frontiers, and historical sites at various periods; illustrations of the conceptions of the land and of the ancient world to which it belongs; and a series of notes to the maps, based on ancient and modern authorities. This atlas should certainly have a place in the libraries of every theological seminary, college and university.

Chief Tahan—whose civilized name is the Reverend Joseph K. Griffis—is one of the most inspiring and interesting figures upon that modern forum, the Chautauqua lecture circuit. Dressed in his full costume as an Indian chief, straight and piercing-eyed and black-haired as a boy, though he is over sixty, he relates not only superb real-life adventures, but also startles his audiences with well-backed-up assertions that the "barbarous" Indians are in many ways happier and wiser than the pale-faces. In this autobiography he has at last told complete that fascinating life story of his. Born a real Indian, fighting with the warriors on the trail, wandering through many cities, becoming a Salvation Army captain, then a full-fledged minister, then a popular lecturer, he has led a red-lettered life, which he describes in a book that is not only absorbing as a novel but is also a genuine "human document."

A collection of his translations and originals, and his very helpful introductions and notes is given in this volume. It is a welcome contribution to the study of hymnology.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT. Octavo. Net, $3.0

The author begins at the center and proceeds to the circumference of thought. H takes up cudgels against many of the modern conclusions. Over against the theory evolution, he submits the theory of creation, which recognizes a transcendent an immanent God, who is also the personal Creator. Not less philosophy but more wi clear the atmosphere of confusion. Two very striking chapters deal with the phil sophical and historical character of the Biblical record. What is written about pe sonality is remarkably original. What gives Christianity its supreme and absolu place is in the fact that it is essentially and emphatically the revelation of the infini nature of man through Jesus Christ, the God Man. The question of miracles interpreted in the light of science and new arguments are presented for immortalit freedom and inspiration.

THE VOCABULARY OF THE GREEK NEW TESTAMENT
Illustrated from the Papyri and Other Non-Literary Sources.
Complete in six parts. Part I now ready. Quarto. Net, $1.50

This is an indispensable work in the study of the New Testament. When completed it will supersede the familiar and greatly beloved Grimm-Thayer's Lexicon. These two authors, who are recognized authorities, place the vocabulary of the New Testament in its living linguistic connection with the world of the first century, and furnish in each article all the available information about the words. Such cult words as anti-Christ, love, sin, truth, apocalypse, forgiveness are given a new setting by illustrations from the non-literary papyri. Among the benefits to be conferred by this vocabulary are light on doubtful passages, settlement of problems like the synpotic, and others relating to authorship, and an understanding of religious thought and terms. The advanced scholar will without doubt use this work, but let the average student of the Greek New Testament take note that it is of the highest value to him, and this second class includes every preacher.

THE SAVIOUR OF THE WORLD 12mo. Net, $1.25

"These sermons are not rooted in 'experience' but in the Bible. They are exegetical in character, and the exegesis is that of a thorough scholar, even though other scholars equally thorough may reach different conclusions. They are logical, calling for continuous thinking and well repaying it. It stirs our admiration to read straight Calvinistic doctrine—election, limited atonement, substitution—unflinchingly declared by one who as thinker and scholar needeth not to be ashamed, and who has the preacher's power. For these sermons are instinct with vital energy and carry throughout the urgency of sincere conviction."—Harvard Theological Review.
"These sermons of Dr. Warfield deserve printing before many other sermons which are put on the printed page. They were not designed merely for effect upon an audience which heard them, but rather with reference to the permanent value of the truths which they were designed to reach. Students of Theology, who heard these discourses, have reason to congratulate themselves, for they are models as presenting doctrinal truth."—Auburn Seminary Record.

THE SWORD OF THE LORD 12mo. Net, $1.25

The first volume by Mr. Hill on "Shall We Do Without Jesus?" was a frank and fearless discussion of the indispensable place of Jesus in modern life. This volume is a sequel to it and it considers some of the manifest duties and obligations of the disciple of Jesus. He first discusses the great outstanding Christian principles in the light of recent anti-Christian and non-Christian thought. Then he deals with a portrayal of the Christian virtues which count in the stirring life of today with its struggles between the ideals of selfishness and altruism. Finally he considers the strength and weakness of patriotism and its relation to Christianity, and he shows in the concluding chapters that the Christian can overcome and survive the autocratic spirit of the age, in scorn of consequence, by faith in the Christ of the Eternal God.

YOUR BOY: HIS NATURE AND NURTURE 12mo. Net, $1.0

This book recognizes the inalienable rights of every boy. The author goes on th healthy presupposition that in reality there are no bad boys. The trouble is that th boy has not been understood and his irrepressible energy has often been mistaken f an evil disposition. Give him patience, confidence, guidance, and he will not fail respond. How this should be done is delightfully described in these live chapters b one of the best advocates of the boy. His common-sense is as convincing as h knowledge.

HALF-HOURS IN GOD'S OLDER PICTURE GALLERY
(H. & S. Library) 12mo. Net, $0.50. If by mail, $0.6

The characters of the Old Testament speak to our own times because they represe the traits and characteristics common to all mankind. They are portrayed in the sermons, which not only conserve the historical reality of the ancient worthies, b also make vivid the memorable applications which their successes and failures ha to us of this day.

THE TUCK-ME-UP BOOK. Frontispiece. Octavo. Cloth, $1.00

A number of well-told bed-time stories, serving a double purpose. They not only satisfy the longings of the little ones for stories at the bed-time hour, but each one has its own particular message to convey. Each story is followed by a quotation from the Bible, a little discussion of the story, the rule it establishes and an especially written hymn.

By WILLIAM CANTON

THE STORY OF THE BIBLE. Illustrated with Over 20 Plates in Color. Large 8vo. Cloth. Uniform with "Robinson Crusoe." Net, $2.00

The complete story of the Old and New Testaments simply told for the understanding of children, but with an eloquence that cannot but prove fascinating. The author has exercised most unusual care to retain the sacred character of the Bible and has succeeded in a manner to excite admiration. Nevertheless, the book is written in so charming a style as to have a wonderful attraction for younger readers. It is a book that will encourage them to read with redoubled zeal and, in the doing, they will be provided with a solid basis for more extensive Bible-study. The illustrations are very faithful representations of the text, and their richness of color greatly adds to the charm of this particularly worthy book. It is by all means the most thoroughly satisfactory story of the Bible for children that has yet come to our notice.

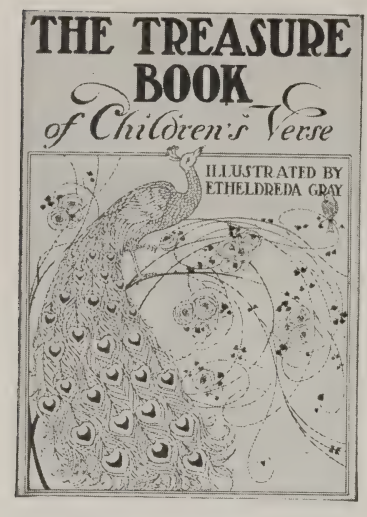
The Juvenile List

THE BIBLE STORY by William Canton. Illustrated with over 20 plates in color. Large octavo. Cloth. Uniform with "Robinson Crusoe." Net, $2.00

The complete story of the Old and New Testaments simply told for the understanding of children, but with an eloquence that cannot but prove fascinating. The author has exercised most unusual care to retain the sacred character of the Bible and has succeeded in a manner to excite admiration. Nevertheless, the book is written in so charming a style as to have a wonderful attraction for younger readers. It is a book that will encourage them to read with redoubled zeal and in the doing they will be provided with a solid basis for more extensive Bible-study. The illustrations are very faithful representations of the text, and their richness of color greatly adds to the charm of this particularly worthy book. It is by all means the most thoroughly satisfactory story of the Bible for children that has yet come to our notice.

ALICE'S ADVENTURES IN WONDERLAND. By Lewis Carroll. Illustrated in color by A. E. Jackson, with decorative cover. Large octavo. Cloth, Boxed. Net, $2.00

There are books for children and there are books for grown-ups, and between is a line very clearly defined. But once in a century there comes a book so written that it is read with unrestrained eagerness by either. Such a book is ALICE IN WONDERLAND. The child reads it for the sudden thrills and the mad happenings which trip in swift, unending succession, each upon the heels of the other. The child, grown up, renews his delightful acquaintance with the unforgettable and the graceful satire of its conversational adventures. ALICE IN WONDERLAND is a book which all will want in the best edition, and this is the most attractive and artistic edition yet issued.

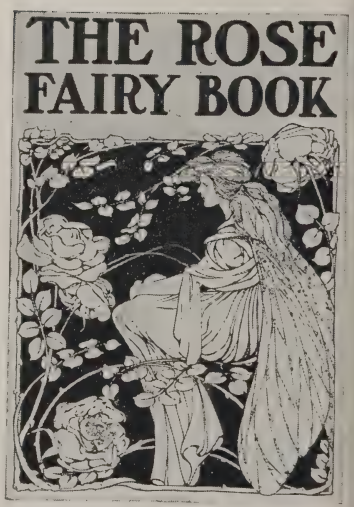


THE TREASURE BOOK OF CHILDREN'S VERSE. An Anthology, edited by Mabel and Lilian Quiller-Couch. Illustrated in color by M. Etheldreda Gray. Large octavo. Cloth. Handsomely bound. Boxed. Net, $2.00

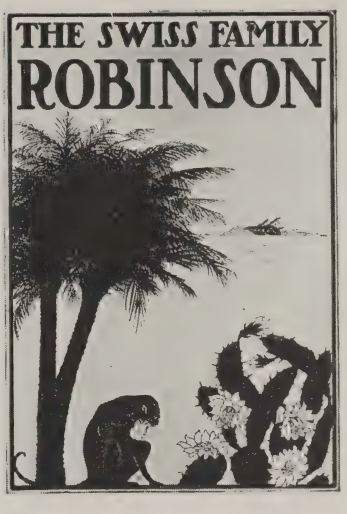
This unique collection of the best and sweetest verse for and about children ranks with Palgrave's GOLDEN TREASURY for originality in composition and literary judgment displayed in compiling. In Etheldreda Gray a great discovery has been made. Her pictures are touched with a wistful tenderness which is the soul of childhood. Each one is a little masterpiece of composition, and as elaborate in detail as an academy picture. As a gift to a mother of young children it is ideal—as the possession of a child it will be cherished for years as a text-book of happiness.

THE ROSE FAIRY BOOK. With 12 plates in color and 59 drawings by Lilian A. Govey. Large octavo. Illustrated and decorated cover. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

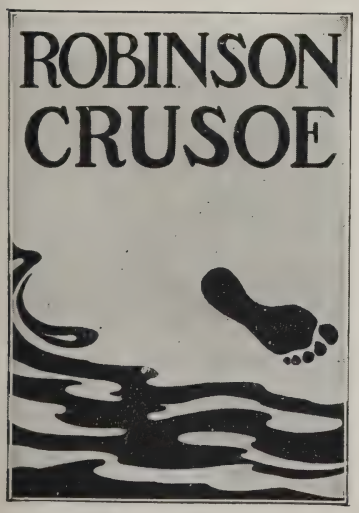
Here between the covers of one book are some of the best stories from the best books of fairy tales of every country and every age. "The Water of Life," "Muchie Lal," "The Nightingale," "Aladdin," "The Traveling Musician," "The Sleeping Beauty" and "Great Claus and Little Claus," are a few of them. In this book, therefore, a child can find the cream of them all, the illustrations, in spite of the dissimilar contents of the book, seem almost magically to adapt themselves to the stories, crystallizing in each its particular charm. Many line drawings and marginal sketches add to the book's attraction.



THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON. With 25 plates in color by T. H. Robinson. Large octavo. Decorative cover. Cloth. Boxed.
Net, $2.00



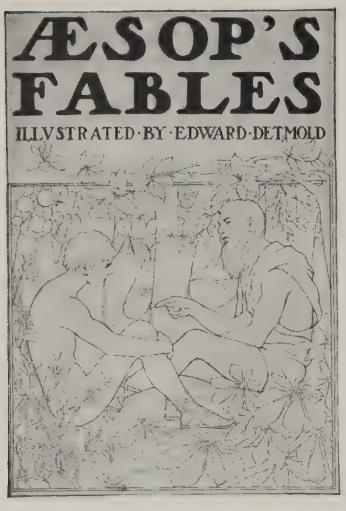
This story, which shares with "Grimm's Fairy Tales" and "Robinson Crusoe" the topmost pinnacle of children's affection, is here presented in the edition in which the others have been hailed with added enthusiasm. There is a richness and variety of adventure in Swiss Family Robinson which challenges the illustrator to his best efforts. Moreover, the remarkable color-sense combined with a vividly whimsical turn of line which Mr. Robinson embodies in these illustrations lends them a great fascination for children. This book is sure to be given the same delighted reception accorded the others.



ROBINSON CRUSOE. Illustrated with 24 plates in color by Noel Pocock, each separately mounted.
Large octavo. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

No edition of ROBINSON CRUSOE hitherto published has been illustrated on the lavish scale of the present one. Mr. Pocock has caught the full spirit of his subject and his illustrations possess great originality of design and excellence of workmanship, bringing home with peculiar force and pathos the circumstances of Crusoe's solitary life. Printed on good paper in a bold type, and strongly bound in cloth, this book in its mechanical excellence is a fitting tribute to this ever-new treasure book for boy or girl, young or old.

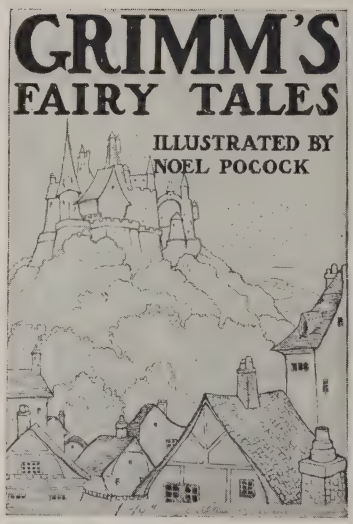
The color printing of the illustrations is most excellent, the richness and brilliancy of the tropical effects so aptly caught by Mr. Pocock are faithfully reproduced, and the mounting of each reproduction on a gray mat individualizes the work as the ordinary method of printing fails to do.



THE FABLES OF ÆSOP. Illustrated by 23 plates in color by Edward J. Detmold.
Large octavo. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00

Mr. Detmold's artistic methods are not upon conventional lines—nor is he an imitator of any modern master in the field of color illustration. He is particularly happy when depicting animals in their relation to action and in their expression of activity and ideas. Mr. Detmold's interpretation of the spirit of ÆSOP will undoubtedly give unbounded satisfaction to the lovers of ÆSOP and this edition should help in restoring to public favor one of the world's greatest entertainers and greatest moral teachers. ÆSOP, illustrated as Mr. Detmold has illustrated it, will seem to have beauty added to the expression of his teachings and force added to the interpretation of them.

GRIMM'S FAIRY TALES. With 23 plates in color by Noel Pocock.
Large octavo. Cloth. Boxed. Net, $2.00



This most loved of all children's books has been illustrated many times, but heretofore no artist, who has undertaken the work, has possessed the wide range of versatility in dramatic ability, composition, or color sense, necessary to properly achieve pictorially the Fairy realm of these old story-tellers. The child of today is to be congratulated on having this completed edition of GRIMM, and the child of yesterday will turn the pages over in delight as the eye recalls the joys and delights of by-gone days when wandering hand in hand with the BROTHERS GRIMM. In style and size this new issue is uniform with the editions of Robinson Crusoe and Æsop's Fables. Of a large Octavo, the page size gives especial prominence to the illustrations and allows the use of a bold, handsome type.

VER BECK'S BEARS IN MOTHER GOOSE LAND. With nearly 75 illustrations in color and in black and white by Frank Ver Beck, and new rhymes by Hanna Rion and old ones by Mother Goose herself. Octavo. Decorated board cover. Net, $2.00

Frank Ver Beck's animal drawings have a great fascination for little children, both by reason of their extreme originality and the skill with which they are executed. These drawings are from his very best, and, reinforced by the clever new lines by Hanna Rion, and the best of the old ones from Mother Goose, make a book that will delight the children as has none other for a long, long time.

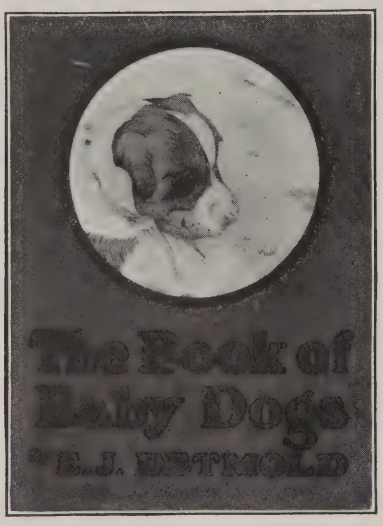
THE HISTORY OF GERMANY. By H. E. Marshall. Quarto. Illustrated in color by A. C. Michael. Net, $2.50

A further volume in the great plan for retelling the history of the nations in a story-form for children. The pageant of the past is made to march with all its banners flying. The great characters, makers and shapers of nations' destinies are introduced as individuals rather than as the bearers of distinguished names. The writing is very human, seizing on the glamour and color of great events, and making them real in the present. The history of Germany is very little known to the average child; the book breaks new ground in its subject and in the method of its telling.

A HISTORY OF FRANCE. By H. E. Marshall, author of "Scotland's Story," etc. Illustrated in color by A. C. Michael. Quarto. Net, $2.50

Written with the accuracy of the exact historian, this book has the warmth and color of a brilliantly sustained romance. Free from the over-emphasis of prejudice, it tells the gallant story of a great people, and tells it in language so straightforward and sincere that to adults it will be more readable than a host of historical romances, and with children it will take its place on the book-shelf beside such favorite and well-thumbed volumes as TREASURE ISLAND and ROBINSON CRUSOE.

THE DETMOLD BABY ANIMAL BOOKS



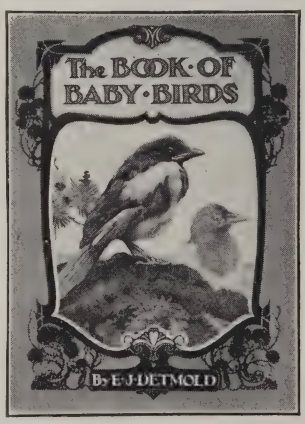
THE BOOK OF BABY DOGS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Charles Kaberry. With 20 plates in color. Bound in picture boards. Large quarto. Boxed. Net, $2.50

In this volume Mr. Detmold has turned to "man's greatest friend," the dog, to find the subjects for his charming illustrations. He has, perhaps, even more than in his previous volumes, achieved success in his interpretation of baby animal life. Here are found pictures of representative puppies of every type of dog. The perfect likeness and the charm of innocence in which the artist conveys his impression of the baby animal is so subtly defined that the reader literally feels the impression thus conveyed. It is one of the most original books about the dog, and must appeal to the dog-fancier and child alike.

THE BOOK OF BABY PETS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. 19 plates in color. Handsomely decorated binding. Large quarto. Boxed. Net, $2.50

Assuredly this volume will have an even greater appeal to children than the previous volumes which have become so popular. Equally beautiful illustrations with the same exceptional delicacy of coloring and line, accompany descriptions here of the little creatures which are dearest of all their possessions to children.

NEW POPULAR EDITIONS



THE BOOK OF BABY BIRDS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. Plates in color. Quarto. Net, $1.50

The illustrations of this book will educate the child as well as fascinate, for they are remarkably true to life; their appeal lies in their quaint and charming fidelity to the actual birds. And Miss Dugdale's description adds to the value and helps the child to understand the picture.

THE BOOK OF BABY BEASTS. The illustrations by E. J. Detmold. The descriptions by Florence E. Dugdale. Plates in color. Quarto. Net, $1.50

The charm and sweetness of all young life has made a most successful appeal from the animal world to artists and writers of all generations. Never before, however, have there been brought into one volume so many pictures of very young animals so gracefully described as in these pictures by Detmold and the charming verse of Miss Dugdale.

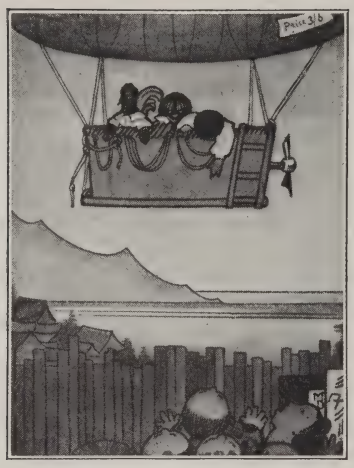
THE FOREST RING. By William C. de Mille. A Fairy Fantasy. Illustrated in color with decorative jacket and picture end papers, by Harold Sichel.
Quarto. Net, $2.00

A fantasy delicate as a gossamer web, whose delicate delight would be spoiled by associating the word "lesson" with it, but which does, at the same time, teach a kindly lesson of the beauty of being good to dumb animals. It is the story of the fairies in the days when they have become shabby-genteel and forlorn because no one believes in them any more. Mr. de Mille, as author of STRONGHEART, THE WOMAN, etc., and co-author of CLASSMATES, showed a superb practical gift for successful drama. But in none of these has he had a chance to express the delight in fairy fantasy which is his as truly as strong situation and crisp dialogue. All that side of Mr. de Mille's work, hitherto unknown to this country, he has charmingly shown in THE FOREST RING. And it is doubtless due to his dramatic training that he has been able to make so vivid and quick-moving a story out of weft o' dream. The illustrations are highly unusual, especially for juveniles; they catch the very spirit of dream days and play days in the woods, and make of THE FOREST RING an American juvenile which rivals the lovely English work of Dulac and Heath Robinson.

By GITHA AND MILLICENT SOWERBY

CINDERELLA: The story told by Githa Sowerby; the illustrations by Millicent Sowerby. Octavo. Decorated Board. Net, $2.50

Of all the old fairy tales dear to the hearts of children, the story of Cinderella has long held the topmost place in their affections, and when this exquisite legend is retold by the magic pen of Githa Sowerby its delicate charm and grace are increased a thousand fold. The illustrations and decorations are done with the elegance that has long been associated with the name of Millicent Sowerby, who, like her noted sister, has acquired an enviable place in the esteem of the little ones, and adhere to the romantic and fanciful atmosphere of the text with a fidelity rarely found in books for children.



THE COCKYOLLY BIRD. Written and illustrated in color by Mabel Dearmer. Octavo. Cloth. Net, $1.50

The Cockyolly Bird was really a toy when Kit first got him, but he suddenly developed the ability to sing. Now, when anyone hears a Cockyolly Bird sing, he has but to say Cockyolly backards and something is bound to happen. Kit was, like many other little boys, very, very curious about such things. So, when he heard the Cockyolly Bird sing one time, he summoned up all his courage and said Cockyolly backwards. That was at the very beginning of the story, but from that time on things happened with an amazing swiftness. The record of Kit's adventures in many strange lands and places form a story for little children sure to arouse their wildest enthusiasm, and make them wish that, like Kit, they had owned a Cockyolly Bird.

THE MAGIC HORSE, AND OTHER STORIES FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS. Retold by Laurence Housman. Illustrated by color plates from the original drawings of Edmund Dulac. Picture-jacket in color. Octavo. Cloth. Net, $0.75

Another volume of the wondrous old stories from the Arabian Nights, their magic charm increased ten-fold by the equally magic pen of Laurence Housman. To the children who have already read these wonderful stories in their original form they will discover a raft of new and good things to increase their delight, and for those who have not they will indeed have reached the height of all that is possible in the way of juvenile entertainment of the better sort. The very fact that the illustrations are by Edmund Dulac is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence.

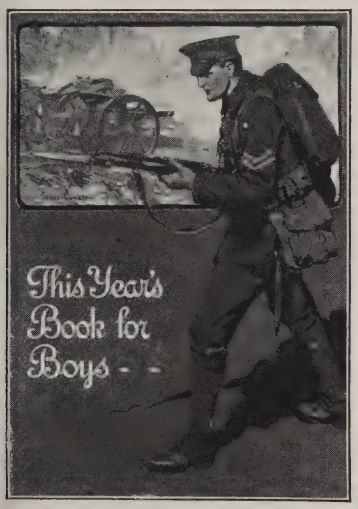
Old, old stories from the Arabian Nights dressed in new, very new, clothes, by this great favorite among children's authors. The Arabian Nights will never cease to exert a wonderful fascination over the little folks who read them for the first time, and when new zest is added to them by the versatile pen of Laurence Housman, they become veritable treasures, and for those who have already revelled in the delightful mysteries of these stories there will be revealed many and wondrous things in the retelling. It is almost superfluous to add that the illustrations by Edmund Dulac are all that can be desired—the very spirit of the magic East stands out all over them.

ON NATURE'S TRAIL. By F. St. Mars. A Wonder Book of the Wild. With colored illustrations. Octavo. Net, $2.00

A book of nature stories of entrancing interest. Each chapter deals with a separate animal and tells us in fiction form its domestic and hunting habits. One might say that it consists of typical days from the lives of wild animals. Mr. St. Mars has the gift of picturesque language and an unusual power of imagination. He has the faculty of endowing each animal he describes with a character which is distinct and rememberable.



THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR BOYS. Excellently illustrated by color plates from the originals of prominent artists. Bound in decorated cloth. Octavo. Net, $1.50

The last edition of this book was greeted with whole-hearted enthusiasm from juvenile readers everywhere. One brief glance at the long list of eminent and extremely popular authors who have written the extraordinarily interesting stories of adventure, invention and progress in the commercial and other fields for This Year's Book for Boys, will suffice to insure one of its excellence. There are stories of great daring, bravery, and self-sacrifice in every walk of life, which, aside from their delightfully entertaining qualities have still another virtue, that of setting a high standard of conduct for ordinary as well as great occasions.

THIS YEAR'S BOOK FOR CHILDREN. End papers in color. Cloth back. Embossed cover. Large Quarto. Net, $1.50

It is within the power of but few juvenile writers to produce stories for youngsters combining the qualities of genuine interest, full of action and merriment, with the faculty of unobtrusively teaching these little ones many good and wholly necessary things, yet those who have contributed to this volume are among that few. JOLLY JAUNTS WITH JIM: THROUGH THE FIREPLACE. Verses by Charles Hanson Towne. Illustrated with 20 color plates and decorated throughout by H. Devitt Welsh. Small quarto. Net, $1.25

On a cold and wintry afternoon Jimmy crept into Father's study with his dog Tag. Sinking into the depths of the comfortable Morris chair, drawn up before a bright, crackling log fire, he lapsed into a brown study. Before long the funniest little man in the world came from out the flames and invited Jimmy and Tag to accompany him on a trip through Flame Land, which they were very glad to do. They found this fairy realm inhabited by the most wonderful people imaginable, and they had a perfectly glorious time, even if Tag did forget his manners when he was dining with the King and Queen. Such is the sum and substance of one of the most thoroughly delightful stories for little folks in many a long day, and very charmingly told in pleasing verses.

A delightful series in which the boy or girl will find solid and useful information imparted in so fascinating a manner that it appears more in the nature of amusement than scientific information. For a long time the lack of a series of nature books that would not only instruct children efficiently in the mysteries of plant life, but also do it in so delightfully entertaining a manner as to create in children the desire to read and study them voluntarily, has been keenly felt. This series has been designed to fulfill that want, and it has succeeded admirably. The many appropriate illustrations form but a small part of the virtues of this charming little series.

THE COUNTERPANE BOOK.

STRUWWELPETER. By Dr. Heinrich Hoffmann. Square 12mo. Decorative boards. $0.25

A facsimile edition of this famous old classic. It has made and held its place by its very absurdity. For one thing it is extremely valuable; it gives us a better conception of our parents' time when we realize that such books were really looked upon as serious in their day. Without a perusal of it, it is impossible to appreciate to the fullest Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verse."

Illustrated with color plates. Each bound in decorated boards. Cloth back. Quarto. Each, Net, $0.25

The first four of these books introduce the child as a guest in the home of some familiar bird, interest him in its young, its habits and methods of securing food, and teach him to love and respect the whole feathered family. The last two contain the nursery rhymes which the children of all time have conned around the nursery fire.

HOW MUCH SHOULD A WOMAN TELL HER HUSBAND?

JULIA PAGE, a daughter of the poor, grew up in rather unpromising surroundings. She and her not too congenial parents dwelt in comparative obscurity in San Francisco. What the child saw of life and domestic relations in her early days was such as to make her frankly skeptical of the world and the gifts it bore.

But nothing can really sully or dim a shining soul, and that Julia Page had and kept. She had the vision, the intuition—what you will—to reshape her whole mental horizon to a new conception of family life and affection upon the occasion of her bitterly humiliating visit to the Toland home; and her entrance into the work of the neighborhood house was the first step on a bridge, that, having crossed, she resolutely burned behind her.

Julia Page hungered for the better things of life and was determined to have them, cost what they would, and it is this picture of unfaltering faith and courage that dominates Mrs. Norris's story. It shines out in Julia's love for young Dr. Studdiford, a thing too precious to be lost at any price and yet too dear to her to be bought by silence, and so she placed in the balance against her love her whole truth.

On the Trail of Stevenson

By
Clayton Hamilton

Size 7 x 10

Illustrated with 25 drawings by Walter Hale

Net, $3.00

PERHAPS the best-loved of all modern authors, Robert Louis Stevenson is dear to his readers, as an intimate friend, and to them this new book by Clayton Hamilton will be a particular pleasure

Characteristic of Stevenson is the vividness with which Mr. Hamilton reproduces the atmosphere and coloring of the localities he knew. Nearly every place he ever visited made a keen impression on his mind and exerted an abiding influence upon his work. For this reason a pilgrimage to his homes and haunts is not merely a sentimental journey but an essential step toward understanding the man and his books.

Mr. Hamilton, an enthusiast lover of R. L. S., has followed the trail of the master in many lands and knows Stevenson better than any man of the new literary generation who never saw Tusitala face to face. In this book he follows him through childhood and youth in Edinburgh, and through his vagabond journeys in the rest of Scotland and on the Continent; a chapter deals with England as known by R. L. S. (a subject which few Stevensonians have discussed) the France, where, of all nations, he was most at home. The Latin Quarter, Mentone, Barbizon and the Forest of Fontainebleau region, Hyères, Saranac, and Stevenson's haunts in New York City —these are a few of the places treated by Mr. Hamilton. True to his ideal (which was also Stevenson's own) of describing nothing that he has not personally visited, Mr. Hamilton does not follow the trail of the Pacific Coast to Samoa. The book also contains pleasant anecdotes of Meredith, Lang, Sidney Colvin, "Cummy," Henry James, Dr. Trudeau, Will H. Low, and other friends of Stevenson.

Walter Hale, whose illustrations are a very important part of the book, is another lover of R. L. S. and half-

The Children's Book of Thanksgiving Stories

Edited by
Asa
Don Dickinson

Editor of the "Children's Book of Christmas Stories," etc.

Size 5 x $7\frac{3}{8}$

Frontispiece

Net, $1.25

TWO years ago the "Children's Book of Christmas Stories" was issued to supply a definite need. This venture was so well received that we have been encouraged to respond to requests for a "Children's Book of Thanksgiving Stories."

Mr. Dickinson's wide experience in public library work has qualified him to prepare a collection well adapted both to delight the children and to satisfy the requirements of teachers, librarians, and parents.

The plan of this book is the same as that of the former collection. It is exactly what the name implied, a select collection of a goodly number of the best stories for children of Thanksgiving Day, which young people will enjoy at any time, but especially during the jolly days of anticipation which precede the festival. There are stories for big, little and "middle-sized" children, and the table of contents indicates at a glance to which class each tale is best adapted. There is also a short note before each of the stories giving in brief its plot, and showing whether its chief interest is for girls or boys.

The Dual Alliance

Author of "Bambi"

Illustrated by Mary Greene Blumenschein

THIS is the story of a clever, charming Irish girl, who from the bottom rungs, climbs slowly but surely up the ladder of success until she is the best-loved actress on the American stage. And then, on the eve of her greatest triumph, her dear old father dies—the only relative she has, and the staunch support and comforter in all the dark days.

After this, Barbara Garratry concludes that life is empty and vain and she is on the point of taking an irrevocable step when she makes a curious compact with an old friend, one of the ablest and most successful lawyers in New York. They are married and begin their separate lives as an experiment with life; then come the weeks in the mountain camp and later the thrilling finish of a campaign which puts Paul Trent in the chair of Governor of the State. And on the last night of the campaign, Barbara, her doubts dissolved, takes the platform at the big mass meeting in Cooper Union and makes a political speech the like of which New York had never heard.

MISS FRYE has selected twelve of the best beloved fairy tales from all countries to illustrate for this edition. Here is the old story of "Jack and the Bean Stalk" of the "Ugly Duckling" of "Puss in Boots," "The Princess on the Pea" and others that have delighted children since the days of Grimm, Andersèn, and Perrault. For eight of the tales there is a drawing in colors in the style of Miss Frye's illustrations for "Myths Every Child Should Know" of last winter and "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils" of the year before. In addition, for each there is a silhouette chapter-heading in black and white.

Miss Frye's drawings are unique in American illustrating.

LITTLE Lady Peggy herself tells the story of how she met Eagle March and of the momentous piece of Secret History in which they became involved.

There is something about her ready Irish wit and daring that appeals to this American Army aviator and that results in a friendship which is destined to lead to many adventures.

Eagle March falls under the spell of her older sister, Lady Diana, and goes to America hoping to win her. There a grave international crisis results from his entanglement, followed by his own disgrace. Forced to begin his career over again he joins the Allies in the war, and wins fame as an aviator by his daring fight against the German air raider. How his name is finally cleared, and his eyes opened to the true character of Diana, are told by Lady Peggy in her own inimitable way.

All the action, romance, and clever dialogue that are always associated with a Williamson novel will be found in "Secret History."

A STUDY OF THE ART OF MAKING THINGS HAPPEN

A RECOMMENDATION OF THE FIRST PERSON PLURAL FOR THE GENERAL USE OF NATIONS AND AS THE FUNDAMENTAL LAW OF ENERGY, SUCCESS AND POWER IN MODERN LIFE.

By GERALD STANLEY LEE

Author of "Crowds," "Inspired Millionaires," etc.

And here we are every day and every night before we go to bed and every morning when we rise—every man of us, facing a great crisis in human nature.

Most war books do not recognize this personal struggle we are each of us having at all. They wing around it grandly and talk about submarines, lyddite, petroleum and copper and statistics, ifferent kinds of murder, ups and downs of battles, and the ins and outs of international law, iplomacy, and food supply.

And all the while the fight that is really on, is the fight each man of us is having by himself, ith the weight and the blackness of his own heart. The real war—the universal war—is this ne—the war of the spectators, the unspeakable mortality suicide, and slaughter of the specta-ors—galleries of nations reaching away.

* * * * * *

It is the personal affair of all of us.

I deal with the theory of human nature we are all consciously or unconsciously fighting for—nd with which I believe we are going to meet the crisis, in the next chapter.

IN almost every household, there is a patchwork quilt that has been handed down through the generations. This book of Mrs. Webster's not only tells the history of quilts with all the pleasant sentiment connected with them, but gives in clear, workable English an account of how quilts can be made to-day, together with a great many illustrations showing the old designs that have been in use for generations, and also the modern designs. In addition to this, there will be sixteen pages in full colors, showing the relation of one color to another, and a large number of outline drawings of individual patterns.

This book will be of interest, first, to the woman who is fond of needlework and wishes to make beautiful bed coverings; second, it will be of interest to those who are interested in the crafts of the country, as followed by our grandmothers; and third, it will be an inspiration to those who are interested in establishing village industries. With this book in hand, the manager of a neighborhood association can get to work at once.

The author has corresponded with more than two thousand people who have written to her as a result of the publication of her articles in magazine form.

The illustrations are from quilts from the East and from Europe now in various museums and from those made in this country both in colonial and modern times.

The Gardening Blue Book

A Manual of the Perennial Garden

By
Leicester B. Holland

Size $7\frac{1}{4}$ x 10

More than 200 illustrations, and color chart

Net, $3.50

One Expert says:

"Unquestionably the most ingenious and accurate scheme ever devised to help the amateur—and the professional—gardener."

THIS is the one complete book of reference containing all the practical, needed information about two hundred hardy perennials. Its distinguishing feature is a color chart which shows at a glance the height, the time of blooming, the color of bloom, preference for sun or shade, wet or dry soil, fragrance, adaptability to rock gardening, in a word, the whole story of all the dependable perennials. In addition to this chart there is a page given to each perennial, on which there is a photographic reproduction of the plant with text setting forth its character, description, cultural directions and enemies, all carefully enumerated.

With this book as a guide in planning a garden or hardy border it becomes an easy matter to secure as accurately as one desires such generally troublesome effects as:

Continuity of bloom throughout the season.

Harmony of color throughout the border.

Desired gradation of heights to make all plants visible.

One can instantly pick out just the plant needed to give a blue note in the back of the border in July, for instance, or the plant needed to edge the garden in early spring with white.

IN "THE RIDDLE OF THE NIGHT" Thomas W. Hanshew has cast his detective, Hamilton Cleek, for the first and last time in a full length novel.

Briefly, the situation is this: Returning home late at night, the limousine of Mr. Maverick Narkom (Superintendent of Scotland Yard) is brought up sharp by a shot and the cry of murder. A brief search leads the superintendent to a little broken-down cottage where a gruesome find is made. There, spiked to the wall with arms outstretched, is the body of an unknown man. A mysterious series of figures and letters is scrawled upon the white shirt front of the victim.

How Cleek, with the help of Ailsa Lorne and half burned portions of a shoe-polish label, finally solves the mystery of the murder and of the figures on the murdered man's shirt front, is the story of "The Riddle of the Night" in which Margot and her gang again play a very important part.

The final revision of the book was almost the author's last work, done partly while he lay upon his deathbed.

A Second "Freckles"

MICHAEL O'HALLORAN

By

Gene Stratton-Porter

Author of "Laddie," "Freckles," "A Girl of the Limberlost," "The Harvester"

THIS is the story of Mickey the newsboy and his ward—Peaches whom he found with a crippled back and cared for until she was cured. It tells, too, of Mickey's part in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton and of the kindliness of Peter Harding and his wife to Peaches and, finally, how Mickey succeeded in getting Dr. Carrel to "give Peaches a new back."

Mickey, like Freckles, is a character of unusual charm, possessed of Irish wit and sprightliness, combined with independence, common sense and a joyous happy nature. The story of his struggles to take care of Peaches—his devotion to his friends and his own self-sacrifices is one of the most appealing things Mrs. Stratton-Porter has ever done.

The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers, and all growing things.

"Just by the merest chance could your name be Mickey."

"Now you cut that out Miss Chicken, right off" said Mickey, "I won't take no tantrums from a dog and I won't from you."

Critics of the Whole Country Acclaim this Beautiful Nature Romance of the Limberlost Swamp, the Home of "Freckles"

The Harrisburg Patriot

"One of the most exquisite stories that has ever been written. It is a prose idyl, this song of the cardinal, an idyl so dainty, so poetic, so classically simple, so throbbing with beauty and color and love and light, that in the most insensible and indifferent to bird love, it needs must strike a responsive chord."

The Los Angeles Express

"Nothing more poetic in conception, or more gracefully expressed has found its way into print."

The Independent

"A more delightful love story has not appeared than 'The Song of the Cardinal.' The tale is told with delicate sentiment, which is really founded upon an intimate and intelligent knowledge of bird life. The unique charm of the story indeed comes from the manner in which the author has translated into romantic terms the authentic performances of a red-bird lover."

The Boston Herald

"A book that deserves a place of its own in American literature is the exquisite prose poem 'The Song of the Cardinal' by Gene Stratton-Porter."

The St. Paul (Minn.) Globe

"After the novels of plot and intrigue, of sordid human striving and fruitless endeavors this little story of love and courtship comes like a breath of fragrant spring, leavened with the dewey freshness of a new world."

Size 5 x 7⅜

DEDICATED TO THE DUFFER

This is the substance of our Plot—
For those who play the Perfect Shot.
There are ten thousand who do not.

For each who comes to growl and whine
Because one putt broke out of line
And left him but a Sixty-Nine,

At least ten thousand on the slate
Rise up and cheer their blessed fate
Because they got a Ninety-Eight.

Yet Splashers in the Wayside Brook,
To you who foozle, slice, and hook,
We dedicate This Little Book.

THE object of this book is not to present any definite instruction along established lines but to range out into the unfamiliar field of golf psychology—to show the value of concentration and control of nerves and to illustrate the points with stories of championship matches and champion players; matches won with certain shots or by unusual temperaments.

Mr. Travers has both played against and watched the play of the best golfers in Great Britain and America. He has first-hand information on how such players as Hilton, Vardon, Travis, Ouimet, and Evans go about their work of beating Par and reducing Bogie to subjection; on what the game's greatest stars have done, and how they do it—their strength and their weakness. And he has surrounded it all with incident and anecdote in a way that holds every devotee of the game, young or old, enthralled.

HIDDEN away among the Dalecarlian hills lay the little Swedish parish where the Ingmarssons lived. As long as the villagers could remember an Ingmarsson had always ruled over the parish in a patriarchal sort of way—"Big Ingmar" they always called the head of the house. The day a Big Ingmar started to plow the fallow field at the north end of the village where lay the Ingmar Farm, plows were put into the earth the length and breadth of the valley. For the Ingmarssons had been on earth such a long time that surely they must know what was pleasing to Our Lord.

Around this family of Ingmarssons and the little peasant community in which they lived, Selma Lagerlöf has built "Jerusalem." She tells the story of the awakening of this parish from its narrow provincial life; of the tremendous religious and social upheaval that takes place among the peasants, and finally of their supreme sacrifice when, leaving home and country, they set out on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

In the every-day life of these Swedish peasants, their toil in the fields or at the lonely forest kilns, their loves and their hates and their final awakening, is mirrored the life of a whole nation. In "Jerusalem" the author of "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils"—now accepted as a classic—has written her second masterpiece.

CAN you imagine what happened in Jordantown when Sarah Morley died and left most of the assets of the community, acquired through various mortgages, to a committee to advance the cause of universal suffrage! Whether you are a Pro or an Anti, won't matter at all for Mrs. Harris is not here concerned in the least with writing campaign literature. What she is mightily concerned in is the story of Bob Sasnett, Judge Regis, Selah Adams and Mrs. Susan Walton all residents in the town aforesaid and what they did with the funds left by the lamented Sarah.

This is the story which Mrs. Harris unfolds with a more continuous play of humor than she has ever brought into one novel before. "Co-Citizens" fairly bubbles with fun.

THERE are probably many thousand readers of Kipling who have at some time or other laid aside the particular book that happened to be in the hand at the moment and asked mentally, "Just what sort of a place is this Simla? To what place in Europe or America does it most nearly correspond? What is its life, what are its charms, and what the reason of its existence?"

Dr. Munson answers just such questions in "Kipling's India," and she is well able to speak with authority for she was for years a practising missionary physician in India and has travelled practically every foot of ground described in Kipling's prose and poetry. That she has the seeing eye and the understanding heart, as well as a rare knowledge of her Kipling, none can deny after reading any of the chapters of her book. Here we see Mulvaney in his real habitat and we have that habitat placed before us with telling and sympathetic strokes which link forever the fictitious character with the actual background against which he was drawn. And Kim, and "Hans, the blue-eyed Dane," and all the others

The illustrations are remarkable.

IT WAS some time after coming to Hempfield that David Grayson obeyed the sign over the office door of the Star and hitched his wagon to that bright luminary and power in Westmorland County politics and entered the lives of the interesting men and women who were making it: the old Cap'n, who wielded so "trenchant" a pen (as he himself loved to call it) and who fought as valiantly against the traitorous Democrats as ever he had against the rebels at Antietam; Fergus MacGregor, the angular, red-haired Scotch Yankee who read Tom Sawyer and Burns and who had printed the Star since man could remember; Ed. Smith, whose new-fangled commercial ideas in editing were not in harmony with its age-long policies; Nort, with his boyish enthusiasm for the uplift of country journalism; and Anthy, so quiet, yet so forceful, who owned the Star and through the charm of her personality kept peace among her strange assortment of employees.

The story of how David Grayson saved the Star from being held up for lack of "insides" by his timely subscription and order for a thousand printed envelopes (cash down); the development of Nort, who "got off" or "was put off" at Hempfield a travelling printer and remained to become co-editor of the Star, now rejuvenated and twinkling more brightly than ever; his rivalry with Ed for Anthy culminating in her appealing letter and Ed's discomfiture; the tragedy of Fergus—all this Mr. Grayson tells with the same charm as he did of his neighbors in "Adventures in Contentment," "Adventures in Friendship" and "The Friendly Road."

THE great bulk of literature on the subject of interior decoration and furnishing divides itself into two different classes; one treats of the so-called Period Styles and analyzes their characteristics; the other class takes up the materials used to-day—furniture, hangings, wall coverings, etc.—and attempts to show the best way to employ these in decorative furnishing. Occasionally the two classes are combined in the same book. Neither of them gets very far because they are not founded primarily upon the eternal principles of art.

Mr. Parsons has written a book that is in neither of these two classes; it builds up in the reader's mind a new sense of knowing what is right—not what is vogue at the moment, but what is eternally right by reason of its compliance with the true principles of art. The reader is shown why the period of Louis XV, for instance, produced what it did—that it was, as always, the reflection of the life of the time, not merely a certain collection of furniture forms.

Here is a book on interior decoration that can never "go out of style" it portrays the inevitableness of the Period Styles with a clarity that no other book has ever possessed; and it builds up in the layman's mind, not a mere collection of arbitrary rules, but an instructive knowledge not only of what is good art in furnishing but just how to go about securing that result under any conditions.

Professor Brander Matthews says in the introduction to the series:

"This much at least is certain now, that in all the more important modern literatures the drama has been reborn. No one who is interested in understanding his fellow man in his own country and in other countries can afford to neglect the plays of our time.

"It is one of the objects of the series to aid in the acquisition of the art of reading a play. Half a hundred of the most important and interesting pieces of the last half century have been chosen; and the story of each has been retold in the form of succinct narrative which from time to time gives place to the actual dialogue of the play itself. Thus the possessor of these volumes will be introduced to many masterpieces of the modern drama by an ingenious and enticing compromise between the unadorned dialogue of the stage play and the unbroken narrative of prose-fiction."

THE VOLUMES CONTAIN SIXTY PLAYS FROM THE FOLLOWING DRAMATISTS

Vol. I. PLAYS OF THE ENGLISH STAGE 1871-1911 represented by plays from Tennyson, William Gilbert, A. W. Pinero, Oscar Wilde, Stephen Phillips, G. B. Shaw, A. M. Synge, Granville Barker, John Galsworthy, Louis Parker.

PLAYS OF THE AMERICAN STAGE 1896-1911 represented by plays from Bronson Howard, William Gillette, Clyde Fitch, Augustus Thomas, Eugene Walter, Percy MacKaye, David Belasco.

Vol. II. PLAYS OF THE FRENCH STAGE represented by plays from Augier, Barrière, Becque, Bernstein, Brieux, Dumas, Labiche, Mirbeau, Richepin, Rostand, Sardou.

THE GRAY DAWN" is a Stewart Edward White story of early California—a tale of love and adventure during Vigilante times when men lived big and the gold coast emerged out of chaos to a state of rough and ready order.

The California of '49 was a seething unformed mass—its people rough and hardy combining the best and the worst of civilization, bringing their own code, were law unto themselves. But others followed them of different stamp—shifty lawyers, unscrupulous, crafty politicians and scoundrels of every walk in life who had never been to the mines and who settled down as parasites on those who worked in them.

This was the San Francisco that Milton Keith, a young lawyer from Baltimore, and Nan, his wife, found after their long voyage from the East. But in those days making friends was easy and after his first introduction Keith knew all the younger set of the town, and, working, in its atmosphere of corruption and frenzy of money-getting, was soon heart and soul in the struggle for fortune. It was so that he put through the deal with Malcolm Neal, tangled himself in a flirtation with Mrs. Morrell, innocent enough in itself but productive of evil consequences, and became the tool of one of the most corrupt politicians. Meanwhile Nan, neglected in the mad scramble, fascinating, and used to adoration, found herself depending more and more on Ben Sansome, and this led to her adventure with him and Morrell at Jake's lonely road house—with nearly fatal consequences.

How Keith is brought to his senses by this affair with Mrs. Morrell; how he undertakes to convict the murderer, Cora, in spite of threats by the gang and takes his part in the execution of both Cora and Casey during the trying days of the rule of the Vigilantes; and how finally, reunited with Nan, after the exposure of Morrell and Sansome they begin their life anew with the confirmed vision of a glorious future, is a story that vividly expresses the spirit of California in those early days. Into it Mr. White has woven the characters who laid the foundation of the state—W. T. Coleman leader of the Vigilantes in '51 and again in '54; John Sherwood '49er, gambler and friend of all, one of the keenest yet lovable of men; Judge David Terry owned by the bosses and the vacillating leader who wrecked the opposition party; James King of William the fearless editor of the Bulletin who started the revolt against the old order and gave his life in the cause.

"Gold" is the epic of the Gold Rush. It pictures colorfully and vividly this time when all the world rushed west to the promise of fortune and hardy men began a new empire. "The Gray Dawn" reproduces just as faithfully the period of '53 when the foundations of the state were laid.

Samuel Hopkins Adams says of "The Gray Dawn":

"It is a big book, and pictures a phase of American life with the utmost vividness and picturesqueness. It seems to me that this, coming on top of 'Gold' puts White in a class by himself as an historical novelist of American life. For combination of research and pictorial presentation—the quality that brings the past to life before one—I don't think of any present day American writer to sit beside him."

THIS is par excellence the Ivory Book. Dr. Kunz's works on "Precious Stones" and "Pearls" are sufficient guaranty of the accuracy, exhaustiveness, and beauty of his new book on "Ivories." The author gives a study of the art of carving ivories from the time of the Neanderthal man, with his first crude drawings of his own likeness on the tusks of a mammoth found in the caves of Dordogne, to the beautiful work done at the present time with descriptions of elephant hunting and the search for the ivory of mammoths and mastodons. Dr. Kunz has been for more than twenty-five years gem expert for Tiffany & Co. He was in charge of the departments of mines at the Paris, Kimberly and Chicago Expositions and through his unusual opportunities for the study of works of art he has been able to collect a great deal of new and valuable information on the subject of carving in ivory. In addition, he has obtained photographs of famous pieces of ivory from the Louvre, Cluny, and other museums and private collections, more than one hundred of which are reproduced herein.

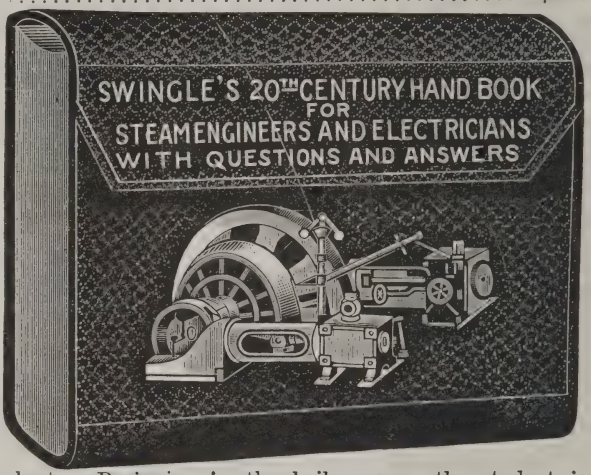
THE TWENTIETH CENTURY HAND-BOOK FOR STEAM ENGINEERS AND ELECTRICIANS.

By CALVIN F. SWINGLE, M. E.

New Revised Edition, 1,500 Pages, over 700 Illustrations, 1,000 Questions and Answers, Handsomely Bound in Full Seal-Grain Leather, Pocket Book Style, Stamped in Gold, Gold Edges. Price $3.00



Sixty thousand Engineers and Students have bought Swingle's Hand Book.

WHY? Because it is the best and only practical treatise on Engineering published—and written so plain that even a child can understand it.

This absolutely new edition covers the whole field of Steam and Electrical Engineering in a clear, concise and practical manner.

It is right up to now, and is acknowledged the king of all engineering books.

The latest, most complete, and most reliable work on stationary and electrical engineering published. This up-to-date new revised and enlarged edition is a compendium of valuable knowledge for the men in charge of power and refrigerating plants. Beginning in the boiler room, the student is gradually led, step by step, through the mazes of boiler operation, construction and repairs, the nature of heat, steam and combustion, and correct methods of making evaporation tests. Engine operation, valve adjustment and indicator work, each and all, clearly explained and made plain by illustrations and line drawings.

The gas engine as a prime mover is a powerful competitor of the steam engine, not only for small power plants, but in many instances large central stations are using gas power. For this reason the author has devoted a large section to a study of the gas engine; the principles controlling its action, and its efficiency as a power producer. Also gas engine indicators, methods of taking diagrams, and computing results. Valve adjustment; ignition apparatus; explosive mixtures, are all freely discussed and explained in detail; also the care and operation of gas engines, including cooling systems and lubrication. Gas producers, their efficiency, and the methods of operation of the various systems are thoroughly treated upon. Air compression in all its details; air compressors; elevators, both hydraulic and electric, each and all receive a large share of attention.

Hydraulics and refrigeration are plainly treated upon, from the practical engineer's standpoint, thus making it possible for the man of limited education to comprehend their meaning. The steam turbine, and the principles controlling its action, clearly explained. The construction and operation of dynamos, motors, and all the various apparatus included in the equipment of the modern power station clearly explained and illustrated, 500 pages being devoted to electricity alone. A complete catechism of questions and answers follows at the close of each section.

JUST A FEW REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD HAVE THE TWENTIETH CENTURY HAND BOOK

First—Because it is the most complete work of its kind that has ever been compiled.

Second—Because it is new, strictly up-to-date and is not filled with obsolete information.

Third—Because it is compiled by a man who has had thirty-seven years practical experience in the engineering field.

Fourth—Because it is exhaustive, clear and comprehensive, built to fit the needs of the experienced engineer as well as the student.

Fifth—Because it will increase your interest and lessen your labors in your daily work.

Sixth—Because it will enable you to use your brains as well as your hands in the performance of your duties, and advancement and higher pay are sure to follow sooner or later.

Seventh—Because it does what no other single book on earth does—it covers the whole field of steam and electrical engineering clearly, plainly, practically and concisely.

Eighth—Because 60,000 engineers have bought and kept Swingle's Hand Book, although any one of them might have had his money back.

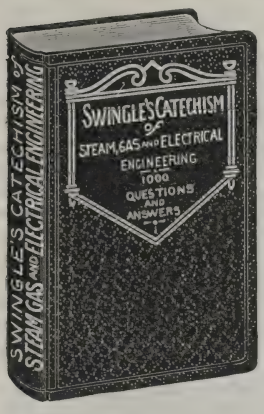
Price $1.50



A book of inestimable value to the busy working engineer, the electrician and the student who desires to advance himself in acquiring a knowledge of engineering. The constantly increasing demand for information in a condensed form, pertaining to engineering topics has induced the author to prepare the book to meet the demand, and it certainly meets it because this book contains over one thousand questions and answers arranged in the form of a complete, practical system of instruction covering all the important details relative to the construction, care and operation of steam boilers and engines, steam turbines, air compressors, refrigerators, and ice machines, hydraulic and electric elevators, gas engines, electric machinery, including dynamos, motors, transformers, rotary converters, etc.

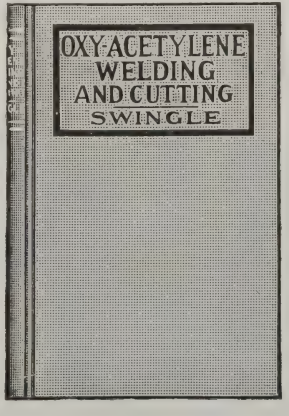
The book is thoroughly indexed, thus making the finding of information on any particular subject the work of but a few minutes time. The various subjects enumerated above are each treated upon in such a manner as to be not only instructive, but at the same time interesting.

OXY-ACETYLENE WELDING AND CUTTING.

INCLUDING THE OPERATION AND CARE OF ACETYLENE GENERATING PLANTS AND THE OXYGEN PROCESS FOR REMOVAL OF CARBON.

By CALVIN F. SWINGLE, M. E.

190 Pages, 76 Illustrations, Pocket Size, Cloth $1.00
Full Leather, Stamped in Gold, Round Corners, Red Edges 1.50



Manufacturers, contractors, machine shops, garages, blacksmiths, boiler makers, repair shops, foundries, steel mills and railroad shops are rapidly adding the oxy-acetylene process to their equipment for cutting beams, girders, steel sheeting, heavy piston rods, steel plates and in wrecking steel frames or bridges. The work can be done cheaper and in less time than by the old methods. The oxy-acetylene flame is used to advantage in welding practically all metals, as steel, cast iron, malleable iron, brass, bronze, copper, aluminum, sheet iron and silver.

The scope of this book is shown by the following thirteen chapter headings: Welding, Welding Flames, Oxygen, Acetylene, Acetylene Gas Purification and Handling, Oxygen Torches, Characteristics of Welding Torches, Welding Installation, Preheating and Annealing, Operating a Welding Installation, Metal Welding Practice, Oxy-acetylene Cutting, Oxygen Carbon Removal.

The book is carefully indexed and in its preparation the author has endeavored to cover every practical point in the process of welding and cutting and the removal of carbon with oxygen. Enough of the theory has been included to enable the practical man to acquire a thorough understanding of the subject.

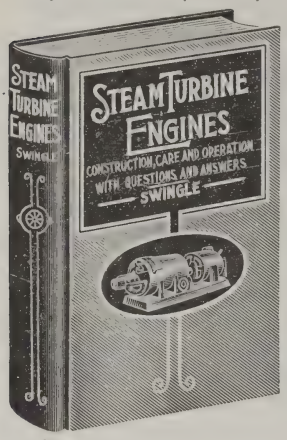
THE STEAM TURBINE, ITS CARE, MANAGEMENT AND OPERATION.

By CALVIN F. SWINGLE, M. E.

Fully Illustrated, 16mo, 150 pages, Cloth. Price.....$1.00



A strictly up-to-date volume, giving the principles governing the action of the various types of turbines, all of which are clearly explained. Their erection and installation, together with details of operation and management of the several different types, including the Westinghouse, Parsons, the Curtis, the De Lavel, the Hamilton-Holzworth, the Rateau, the Allis-Chalmers and the Reidler-Stumpf steam turbines, all of the latest models which have become standard. Detailed descriptions of the several different types are given, each being clearly explained, and the fundamental principles controlling their action made plain by means of accurate sectional views and diagrams. The steam turbine has come to stay. This fact is self-evident, and the engineer who fails to post himself regarding this comparatively new system of using steam for the production of power, will sooner or later find himself at the tail end of the procession. To those who are anxious to obtain a good practical knowledge regarding the construction, care and operation of steam turbines, this book will prove to be a reliable and trustworthy source of information. The book is written in a plain, non-technical style, easily understood by the man with an average education, while at the same time the man "higher up" will find within its pages much that will instruct and enlighten him. A section is devoted to a discussion of the different forms of buckets and guide blades.

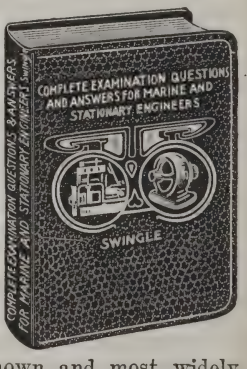
The various styles of stuffing boxes, and methods of cooling them, are described and illustrated. In addition to full and complete descriptions of the standard types of high pressure steam turbines, there is a special section devoted to the Rateau low pressure turbine system.

A complete list of examination questions and answers follows at the close of the book.

COMPLETE EXAMINATION QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS FOR MARINE AND STATIONARY ENGINEERS.

By CALVIN F. SWINGLE, M. E.

367 Pages, 212 Illustrations, Pocket Size, Full Leather, Round Corners, Red Edges. Price $1.50



A concise and thoroughly reliable book covering every phase of marine and stationary engineering. The subject matter is treated in the form of a catechism, there being 800 questions and answers, accompanied by many valuable tables and rules bearing upon the leading topics; the whole being finely illustrated by over 200 half-tone engravings and line drawings. For busy men, and for those who are not inclined to spend any more time in study than is absolutely necessary, this book is invaluable as an aid and helper. All of the various types of boilers, both stationary and marine, that are in use at the present day, are fully described and illustrated, and complete instructions given regarding their care and operation.

WHEN YOU TAKE THE LICENSE EXAMINATION

Since the license examination is necessarily in the form of questions and answers, books which are written in the question and answer form are probably better adapted for preparing a candidate for examinations than any other kind. This book is the best known and most widely read book of its class in the world. Compiled by one of the members of the Board of Examining Engineers, City of Chicago, from questions actually asked by the Board, and they cover the subject thoroughly. It is standard—full of the kind of information a man needs to get his license or solve the problems of any plant.

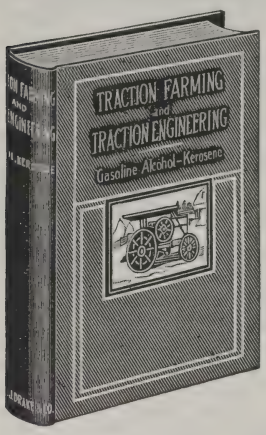
TRACTION FARMING AND TRACTION ENGINEERING
GASOLINE—ALCOHOL—KEROSENE

By James H. Stephenson, Author of "Farm Engines and How to Run Them," "The Young Engineer's Guide," Etc.

330 Pages, 151 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth. Price.....$1.50



Progressive methods of farming have been adopted so rapidly that instruction books of yesterday are obsolete to-day. Mechanical power has brought about a reorganization in agriculture. With the advent of complicated farm machinery, tuition instead of intuition has become the rule. Farming is no longer done by rule-of-thumb and guesswork. It is an exact science.

To meet the demand for instruction in the latest developments in agricultural progress, namely, gas and oil engines, this book is published. It is a practical hand-book for owners and operators of farm tractors. It presents the principles of construction and describes the actual operation of all the leading makes of gas and oil engines for farm use.

The scope of the work is best presented by noting a few of the subjects which are fully treated: Fuel consumption and fuel tests; gasoline, alcohol and kerosene as fuels; balancing of engines; piston rings; valves; leaky pistons; the cylinder; the carbureter; ignition; vaporizing of fuel; cooling systems; lubrication; horse power calculations; gasoline engine troubles.

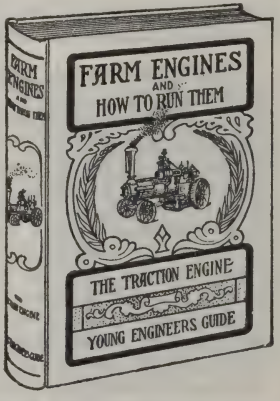
Part II is devoted to water supply systems and electric lighting systems on the farm. Full instructions with illustrations as to installation, care and operation are given.

Part III takes up the science of threshing. Complete descriptions of the leading types of threshers are given; also harvesting machines, plows and other farm machinery, all of which may be operated by means of the tractor.

FARM ENGINES AND HOW TO RUN THEM. THE YOUNG ENGINEER'S GUIDE.

By JAMES H. STEPHENSON AND OTHER EXPERT ENGINEERS

12mo, Cloth. Price $1.00



The book first gives a simple description of every part of a boiler and traction or simple stationary engine, with definitions of all the technical terms commonly used. This is followed by over eighty test questions covering every point that precedes. Then come simple and plain directions to the young engineer as to how to set up and operate his engine and boiler, followed by questions and answers as to what should be done in every conceivable difficulty that may arise, covering such subjects as scale in the boiler, economical firing, sparks, pressure, low water and danger of explosions, lining and gearing the engine, setting the valves, oiling, working injector and pump, lacing and putting on belts, etc.

A most valuable feature of the book is the section on "economy in running a farm engine," in which the theory of steam power is ably discussed and explained.

How to utilize the expansive force of steam to the best advantage is clearly explained, and a short explanation is also given of the action of a compound engine. Gas and gasoline engines are also described, and the principles of their action explained, together with full instructions regarding their care and operation. A chapter is also devoted to the threshing machine, with full instructions regarding its operation. This book has been adopted by nearly every Agricultural College in the United States and Canada as their text book on Farm Machinery.

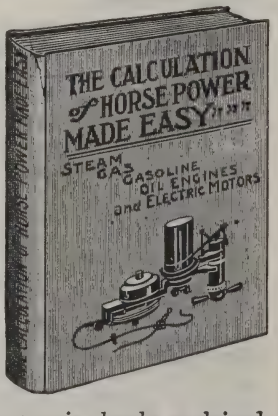
THE CALCULATION OF HORSE POWER MADE EASY.

By L. ELLIOTT BROOKES

80 Pages, Illustrated, Cloth. Price.....75c



This work deals in a practical and non-technical manner with the calculation of the power of steam engines, explosive and electric motors.

It has been the endeavor to present in as simple a manner as is possible, a number of useful rules and formulas that may be of great value to engineers, machinists and designers in calculating horse-power.

This work covers many points regarding the calculation of horse-power and useful information not hitherto published in a single volume, and includes Calculated, brake and indicated horse-power, point of cutoff and average steam pressure, horse-power of explosive motors, degree of compression and combustion chamber dimensions, indicator diagrams of steam engines and explosive motors.

One of the most valuable features of the book is the method given for ascertaining by means of tables the average steam pressure on the piston throughout the stroke, from any initial pressure, from 50 lbs. to 300 lbs., and at any point of cut-off, ranging from ⅛ to ¾. The meaning of brake, and indicated horse-power is clearly explained. Indicator diagrams are thoroughly analyzed, and their different points and curves defined. The use of the planimeter is explained. Specific heat, absolute temperature and heat, are each and all clearly defined and explained. A section of the book is devoted to the important subject of electrical horse-power, and what it means. All this is clearly explained in non-technical language, thus making it easy of comprehension by the man of average education.

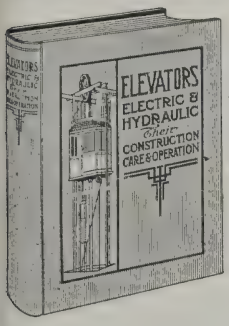
ELEVATORS—HYDRAULIC AND ELECTRIC.

THEIR CONSTRUCTION, CARE AND OPERATION.

By CALVIN F. SWINGLE, M. E.

16mo, Cloth. 104 Pages, 38 Illustrations. Price.....$1.00



A complete hand book containing full descriptions and illustrations of the mechanism of all the modern types of hydraulic and electric elevators. The principle governing the action of hydraulic elevators in general, and of each one of the different types in particular, are explained in detail. Beginning with the low pressure vertical cylinder type, the various safety devices are described, and their action made perfectly plain by means of sectional illustrations and diagrams. This includes the speed limit, the various kinds of governors, operating valves, magnetic controllers, main and pilot valves, etc., etc. High pressure elevators are dealt with at length, and the action of the accumulator described. A large space is devoted to electric elevators of all types, and instructions given as to their care and operation. The direct acting plunger elevator is also described in detail, and the action of the accumulator explained.

Literature treating upon the subject of Elevators, either electric or hydraulic is extremely scarce. Even the manufacturers themselves appear to be chary about issuing circular matter descriptive of the various devices and apparatus that they build for the propulsion of Elevators. It is therefore with a view of assisting the engineer who is responsible for their care and safe condition, and the operators whose duties are to handle elevators, that this little volume is sent forth. A study of its contents cannot fail to be of the greatest benefit to those interested, for the reason that the principles involved in the construction and operation of the various types of elevators are clearly set forth, and explained in language at once explicit, and to the point.

145 Pages, 100 Illustrations, Pocket Size, Full Leather Binding, Round Corners, Red Edges. Price $1.50

The author is a practical mechanic, being in charge of the pattern shop in an extensive locomotive repair shop, where most of the examples illustrated in this book were made. Nearly every problem explained is taken from an actual pattern. The book is copiously illustrated with actual working drawings, and the most simple methods and lucid explanations only are used. It is elegantly printed on a superior quality of paper, and is intended to put any good wood mechanic in possession of such facts as will enable him, in an emergency, to make any pattern which might be required around an ordinary railroad or machine shop. Very little is to be found in the catalogues of technical books pertaining to the very important art of making wood patterns for moulders' use and the author has offered the present volume to fill this want.

Before entering into the details of pattern making the author devotes considerable space to the consideration of foundry practice. The making of castings from start to finish is clearly described, and further made plain by numerous views, sectional and others. The tools used by pattern makers are described and illustrated, and instructions regarding their use are given. The process of making a pattern is then taken up; first one of the more simple forms, and from that gradually leading up to those more complicated. The proper method to be followed in making a pattern for a large pulley, or flywheel is described and made plain by illustrations. Sweep work is fully described and illustrated. Making a pattern for a double chime whistle for a locomotive is also described and illustrated, also the making of patterns for pipe fittings.

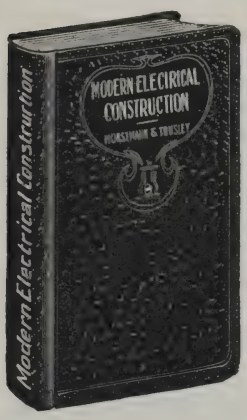
MODERN ELECTRICAL CONSTRUCTION.

By HENRY C. HORSTMANN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY

New Revised and Enlarged Edition, 16mo, 425 Pages, 200 Diagrams, Pocket Size, Full Leather Limp. Price $1.50



This book treats almost entirely on practical electrical work. It uses the "Rules and Requirements of the National Board of Fire Underwriters" as a text, and explains by numerous cuts and detailed explanation just how the best class of electrical work is installed.

It is a perfect guide for the beginning electrician and gives him all the theory needed in practical work in addition to full practical instructions. For the journeyman electrician it is no less valuable, because it elaborates and explains safety rules in vogue throughout the United States. It is also of especial value to electrical inspectors, as it points out many of the tricks practiced by unscrupulous persons in the trade.

The book begins with a short general discussion of the nature of the electric current, its production, either by battery or otherwise, its flow and the methods by which its volume and intensity are measured. Electric bells, the telephone, the induction coil, batteries and wiring systems, each and all are discussed in turn and illustrated. The transmission of electrical energy, and the calculation of wires are each treated upon at length and clearly explained, rules and formulæ being given for calculating the required sizes of wires for certain conditions. The national electric code, or Chicago rules governing electrical construction in all its phases are given in full, and will be found to be an indispensable guide for the electrical worker, and also for the contractor. Numerous illustrations are interspersed throughout this section, showing correct methods of wiring and electric construction.

MODERN WIRING DIAGRAMS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

By HENRY C. HORSTMANN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY

16mo, 300 Pages, 225 Illustrations, Full Leather Binding, Round Corners, Red Edges. Pocket Edition. New Revised and Enlarged Edition. Price.....$1.50

It contains no elementary considerations; you are supposed to know what an ampere, a volt or a "short circuit" is.

All these have been omitted to make room for "diagrams and descriptions" of just such a character as workers need. We claim to give all that ordinary electrical workers need and nothing that they do not need.

It shows you how to wire for call and alarm bells. For burglar and fire alarms. How to run bells from dynamo current. How to install and manage batteries. How to test batteries. How to test circuits. How to wire for annunciators; for telegraph and gas lighting. It tells how to locate "trouble" and "ring out" circuits. It tells about meters and transformers. It contains 30 diagrams of electric lighting circuits alone. It explains dynamos and motors, alternating and direct current, ground detectors, "compensator" and storage battery installation.

The principles controlling the action of synchronous and induction motors are clearly explained, the explanations being accompanied by diagrams and line drawings. The action of the transformer is also explained and its construction clearly illustrated. Diagrams and descriptions are given of the various types of armatures, showing their construction. A large section is devoted to switch boards and ground detectors, in which the wiring and connections are clearly shown by accurate diagrams and illustrations. Detailed instructions are also given in regard to correct methods of manipulating the switches and plugs. The function of the ground detector is explained, and instructions given for using it. The section on testing out rough wiring is of special value to the electrician and wireman. The action of the Wheatstone bridge is described and made plain by illustrations

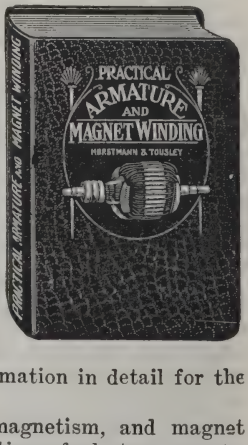
PRACTICAL ARMATURE AND MAGNET WINDING.

By HENRY C. HORSTMANN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY

Pocket Size, Full Persian Morocco Leather, Round Corners, Red Edges. Price $1.50



While the subject of armature winding has, in the past, been more or less completely covered, most of these works have been either too technical in their composition or have required a fair degree of knowledge of the subject before they could be clearly understood.

This book treats in a practical and concise manner this very important subject.

All practical armature windings are fully explained with special attention paid to details. All questions which are apt to arise in the minds of the electrician have been completely answered.

Numerous illustrations have been supplied, and these, taken in conjunction with the text, afford a ready means for either the study of the armature or for a book of reference. Various useful tables have been especially prepared for the work and these will not only reduce to a minimum the number of calculations required, but lessen the possibility of errors.

The chapter on the calculating of armatures gives complete information in detail for the design of an armature.

A large section of the book is devoted to a discussion of magnetism, and magnet winding. Rules and formulæ are given for guidance in the calculation of electro-magnets, and explicit instructions regarding methods to be pursued in winding the various types of magnets. The construction of the choke coil is also clearly explained. The book is a most valuable aid to the electrician, either in the constructing or operating department.

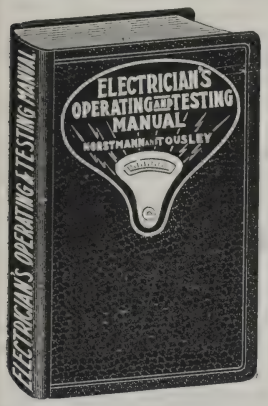
ELECTRICIANS' OPERATING AND TESTING MANUAL.

By HENRY C. HORSTMANN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY, AUTHORS OF "MODERN WIRING DIAGRAMS," "ELECTRICAL CONSTRUCTION," ETC., ETC.

Illustrated, 16mo, Full Leather, Round Corners, Red Edges. Price.....$1.50



A plain, practical hand book for working electricians who have to install or care for electrical equipments in general. This work is intended mainly for those working electricians who have to do with the installation, operation, testing, maintenance and repairs of electrical apparatus, from generators and motors to lamps and bells.

That all of these matters may become perfectly clear to the reader, the authors have endeavored to treat the principles underlying the construction and the testing of the various devices very fully, as well as to point out the practical manner in which tests are made and the symptoms by which the many troubles occurring indicate themselves.

Almost every line of industry, great or small, now has much to do with electric motors and lights, to say nothing of the ever increasing number of small isolated plants using gas or gasoline.

From observation of many such plants in actual operation it has long been apparent to the authors that some hand-book giving in condensed, simple matter, all of the instructions needed for the intelligent installation and operation of electrical devices is greatly needed.

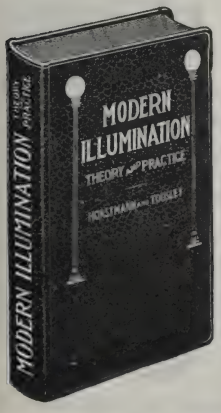
The method adopted has been that of familiarizing the student with the underlying principles governing the design of motors, dynamos, arc lamps, etc., rather than to go overmuch into detail on the construction of particular commercial forms. It is confidently believed that the student who has mastered the general theory of dynamos, motors, etc., will have no difficulty in comprehending such variations in their application as he may meet with.

MODERN ELECTRIC ILLUMINATION—THEORY AND PRACTICE

By HENRY C. HORSTMAN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY.

Limp Leather, Round Corners, Full Leather, 275 Pages, Illustrated. Price.....$2.00

KNOW ELECTRIC LIGHTING FROM A TO Z.



Whether you're electrician, contractor, building manager or just plain ordinary user of electricity, you need to be posted on what the best lighting systems are and how to install them, what kind of lights are most efficient in this type of building, and what in that.

"MODERN ILLUMINATION" answers your questions. It's a book of solid, scientific knowledge for student, electrician, Contractor and User. It's the last word in illuminating science and construction—chock full of the information you want—written in a way you'll understand.

The subject of illumination (properly treated) is one that rightly appeals as much or more to the lay user of light than to the technical man who is called in to provide the installation. It is a subject that in the early days of electric lighting has obtained very little or scant attention.

Recent improvements in the manufacture of many kinds of electric lights have made the use of this method of lighting so cheap that really in thousands of shops and offices managers are wasting the time and efficiency of their employes by the use of old and mostly incorrect and harmful methods of illumination.

In this work the characteristics of the various illuminants, from the oldest form of arc lamp to the Moore tube, Neon Vapor lamp or the latest developments are clearly described.

In short, this work is intended to enable the layman to talk intelligently to his dealer or contractor and demand to be "shown" and to understand fully what is being shown him.

DYNAMO TENDING FOR ENGINEERS, OR ELECTRICITY FOR STEAM ENGINEERS.

By HENRY C. HORSTMANN AND VICTOR H. TOUSLEY, AUTHORS OF "MODERN WIRING DIAGRAMS AND DESCRIPTIONS FOR ELECTRICAL WORKERS."

This excellent treatise is written by engineers for engineers, and is a clear and comprehensive treatise on the principles, construction and operation of dynamos, motors, lamps, storage batteries, indicators, and measuring instruments. It gives full explanation of the principles governing the generation of alternating currents and a description of alternating-current instruments and machinery. There are perhaps but few engineers who have not in the course of their labors come in contact with the electrical apparatus such as pertains to light and power distribution and generation. At the present rate of increase in the use of electricity it is but a question of time when every steam installation will have in connection with it an electrical generator, even in buildings where light and power are supplied by some central station.

This book contains a full and clear explanation of the principles and operation of electric motors of all types, including shunt, series, compound-wound and induction motors. Fuses and circuit breakers are freely discussed. The principles involved in the action of volt and ammeters are explained, and their construction and installation described and made plain by numerous illustrations and diagrams. Detailed instructions are also given for reading meter dials. Arc lamps are dealt with at length, and the principles upon which the different types operate are explained in detail and made plain by illustrations and diagrams. The new Nernst lamp is described in detail, and its action explained by the aid of diagrams and line drawings. Line testing is fully described, and instructions given as to the proper methods of conducting tests.

THE HANDY VEST POCKET ELECTRICAL DICTIONARY.

By WM. L. WEBER, M. E.

Cloth, Red Edges, Indexed $0.25
Full Leather, Gold Edges, Indexed ..... .50

Contains upward of 4,800 words, terms and phrases employed in the electrical profession, with their definitions given in the most concise, lucid and comprehensive manner.

It also embodies many of the features of the cumbersome volumes of electrical encyclopedias, which are only accessible in public or private libraries, and which, by reason of their ponderous dimensions, are rendered impossible as aids to the average electrician in the daily routine of his profession.

Much thought and great care has been exercised in the preparation of this unique work by the author, Mr. William L. Weber, M. E.

All the scientific principles which constitute the foundation of electrical engineering are contained in the definitions given in this work, and while necessarily appearing in a concise or abstract form, they are stated in terms so simple and with such freedom from ambiguity, that the reader of average intelligence and limited education cannot fail to comprehend their full meaning.

Although the book is small, (vest pocket size) we venture the assertion that there is contained within its covers more reliable and useful information for the electrician, than was ever before published in a single volume, and the busy electrical worker will find it to be of inestimable value in his work, for the reason that he can carry it with him every day, and have it to refer to whenever a perplexing problem comes up. At the close of the book are given illustrations of the various kinds of circuits used in wiring, also diagrams showing the connections of the series dynamo, the shut dynamo, and the compound-wound dynamo.

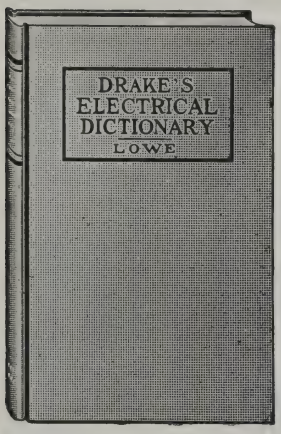
WORDS, TERMS AND PHRASES USED IN THE ELECTRICAL TRADES AND ENGINEERING.
By PAUL E. LOWE, M. E.

320 Pages, Pocket Size, Limp Cloth. Price.....$1.00
Full Leather, Stamped in Gold, Red Edges, Round Corners. Price..... 1.50



The tremendous growth in interest in the electrical arts, trades and sciences makes some method of quick reference a practical necessity. In this book the author has brought together and arranged in alphabetic order thousands of words, terms and phrases in common use in the electrical world.

Every effort has been made to produce a book of the greatest practical utility to every one who has any interest in the subject of electricity.

In any field of science in which growth has been and continues to be so rapid, it is only natural that words and terms are not absolutely fixed. Without making the work too voluminous, however, we have endeavored to include all those words and terms in common use, though many are used interchangeably.

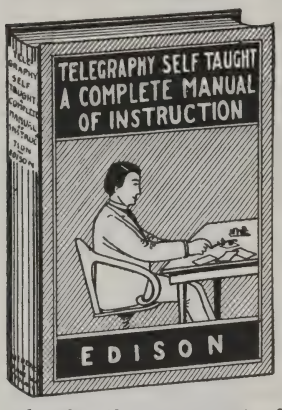
TELEGRAPHY SELF TAUGHT. A COMPLETE MANUAL OF INSTRUCTION.

By THEODORE A. EDISON, M. A., INSTRUCTOR AT AMERICAN SCHOOL OF TELEGRAPHY

12mo, Cloth Binding, 170 Pages, Fully Illustrated. Price.....$1.00



In this valuable volume will be found everything that is necessary to the study of telegraphy. Though telegraphy is essentially a matter of practice, it has been the aim of the author to present to those who aspire to master the art of telegraphy, a book treating the subject in as concise and clear a manner as possible, without eliminating anything that is important, and without putting in things that are detrimental, and which would have a tendency to confuse.

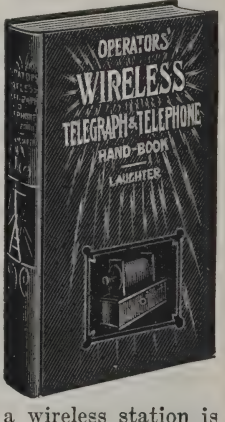
To practice the sending of messages is comparatively easy, but many students find considerable difficulty in procuring the necessary assistance in training the ear to receive messages rapidly and correctly. The audible alphabet system given in this work fully describes the best method of obtaining this assistance.

This system is explained at considerable length, the explanations being accompanied by clear and easily understood illustrations. Rules are given for the guidance of telegraph operators in railroad service. These rules are very clear and comprehensive. The block signal system for trains is also explained, together with rules for the movement of trains by telegraphic orders, which latter are explained at considerable length and in detail. A complete list is also given of the many abbreviations or contractions of words, and sentences used in telegraphy.

OPERATORS' WIRELESS TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE HAND-BOOK.

By VICTOR H. LAUGHTER

12mo, Cloth, 210 Pages, Fully Illustrated, and with Six Additional Full-Page Halftone Illustrations Showing the Installation of "Wireless" on the U. S. War Ships and Ocean Liners. Price $1.00



The process of transmitting wireless messages through the air, over long distances by the aid of electricity, is to countless thousands of people, only a mysterious fairy tale; and, while it may be a reality to many thousands more, still they do not comprehend the principles of the art, neither do they understand the methods by which the feat is accomplished. To all such, as well as to the more advanced students, operators and others whose work brings them more or less in touch with wireless telegraph or telephone work, this book will prove to be a most valuable helper. Beginning with a short, but remarkably clear and concise dissertation on the subject of electricity, it describes the methods of producing the different forms of electricity, such as voltaic, dynamic, etc., including also an explanation of electro-magnetism. It gives a brief historical sketch of the work of early investigators and their experiments in wireless telegraphy, and vividly describes the marvellous progress it has made within recent years. It describes in detail the construction of a simple wireless set, by the use of which the student may gain a knowledge of the underlying principles of the art. Spark coils and transformers, condensers, vibrators and interrupters are each described in detail, and their action clearly explained. The tuning of a wireless station is fully explained and the construction and operation of the various instruments described. Detectors and detecting instruments are discussed at length, and their action explained and illustrated by many diagrams and line drawings. Aerials for the interception or transmission of messages are fully described, and the basic principles and operation of the many different types are explained in detail. A special section of the book is devoted to the proper methods to be pursued in the study of wireless telegraphy, including also naval rules governing wireless stations. The Morse and Continental Codes, both of which are used in wireless telegraph service, are clearly shown. as are also the abbreviations used.

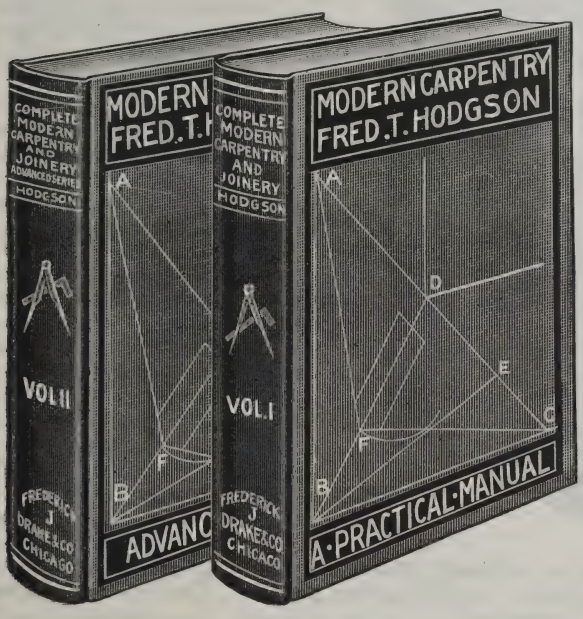
MODERN CARPENTRY AND JOINERY. TWO VOLUMES.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

700 Pages, 600 Illustrations.

Two Vols., Cloth Binding.	Price	$2.00
Single Vols., Part I, Cloth.	Price	1.00
Single Vols., Part II, Cloth.	Price	1.00



This is a real modern work and the large numbers of it that have been sold (over one million) is an evidence that American workmen have found in it the things they expected. It is the best set of books of the kind ever brought out for teaching the young workman the art of correct and easy wood-working. It shows how to lay out roofs, rafters, stairs, hoppers, bevels of all kinds, mitering, coping, circle work, flooring, splayed work, plain stairs and hand-railing, cornicing, dovetailing and many other things the young carpenter will require to know in the performance of his regular work. It is written in a very simple style, and can be understood by any person who can read every-day English. Unlike other works prepared for workmen, it is void of bewildering formulæ and algebraic puzzles, and the reader is not asked to wade through long mathematical calculations to get at the kernel of the subject before him.

Volume II is somewhat similar to Vol. I, only on advanced lines, and is intended to follow up the progress made by a study of the first. Indeed, it is simply a continuation of the first volume, on a higher plane, and no workman having mastered the contents of one, will rest satisfied, until he has also mastered the contents of the second volume.

This volume contains some examples of work, with a description of the way the work is performed, and the materials employed. Many very difficult problems are here shown and the solutions and explanations are given and fully explained, many things that at first seem formidable to the unpracticed workman, become quite easy of solution under the magic wand of the author's method of explanation.

It is the most complete, most accurate, most up-to-date and most practical work upon this subject. It contains the best and quickest methods for laying roofs, rafters, stairs, floors, hopper bevels, mitering, coping, splayed work, circular work, and, in fact, for forming all kinds of joinery and carpenter work.

Special chapters are devoted to building construction, which takes the carpenter from foundation to roof, with complete illustrations of each detail, such as foundation, windows, cornices, doors, roofs, porch work, etc. There are also special chapters devoted to good and faulty construction and all kinds of framing.

700 Special Illustrations. There are over 700 illustrations, many of them cover an entire page, and they illustrate completely and instructively the text. They show the detail and actual construction down to the minutest point. They enable the reader to understand the text easily and to follow the work in hand without difficulty.

REMEMBER, this work is the latest one published on this extensive subject.

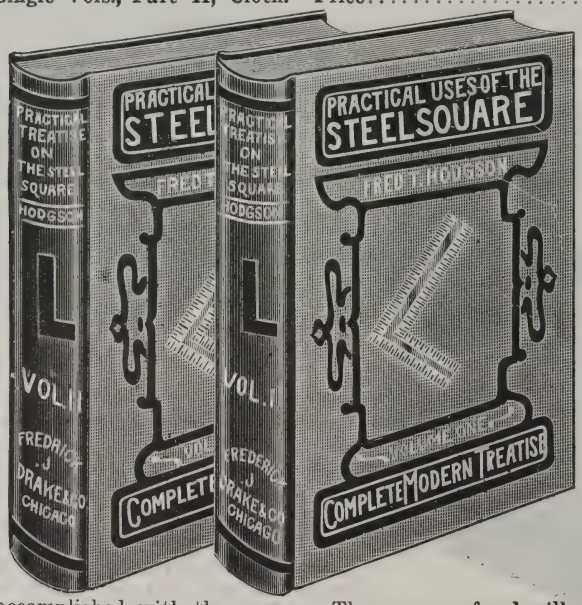
A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE USES OF THE STEEL SQUARE.

A COMPLETE MODERN TREATISE.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

600 Pages, 500 Illustrations, Two Vols., Cloth Binding. Price.....$2.00
Single Vols., Part I, Cloth. Price.....1.00
Single Vols., Part II, Cloth. Price.....1.00



Mr. Hodgson was the first—as well as the last—person who has written on this important tool, and the two volumes now issued contain the earliest and the latest up-to-date methods of applying the STEEL SQUARE for the solution of the many problems this wonderful instrument can solve when in capable hands. The two volumes, named herewith, contain about all that is possible to be done with the square, that is of practical value to the workman, and, as they show nearly all the simple, as well as the difficult things, that can be accomplished with the aid of this tool, there will be little trouble for the workman to work out any minor problem that may confront him, if it is within the purview of the tool. In short, the two volumes contain all that can now, or hereafter, be accomplished with the square. They are profusely illustrated with diagrams, and explanatory sketches, which cover the whole ground of steel square practice. Two volumes of the greatest possible value to the young carpenter.

This splendid edition is a brand new book from cover to cover, written in simple, plain, every-day language so that it can be easily understood and followed. Information of value that has appeared in former works appears in this work, together with a vast amount of new, practical, every-day information, such as is necessary for every progressive and successful carpenter to know.

This Up-to-Date and Practical Work on the application of the steel square, treats of the laying of the rafters, finding the lengths of jacks, securing bevels, laying out hopper bevels, treating of the steel square as a calculating machine, and showing how to measure solids, surfaces and distances.

Special Chapters are devoted to that part of stair building to which the steel square can be applied. Other chapters treat of the adjustable fence, roof framing, hipped roof framing, hoppers and hopper bevels, combination squares, key to the steel square, possibilities of the steel square, polygons and miters, pitches and roof framing, and miscellaneous rules and examples.

BEWARE—There are many editions of Mr. Hodgson's treatises on the steel square in the market which are sold at almost any price. Some publishing pirates even went so far as to use editions of 20 years ago, adding a lot of worthless material and not only that, but using his text matter and applying their name to the book as author, the world's greatest authority. So when you want the genuine latest treatise on this wonderful tool be sure you get the only authorized edition, published and bearing the copyright of Frederick J. Drake & Co.

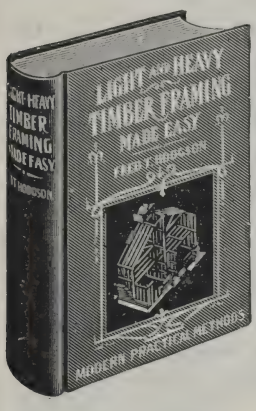
HEAVY AND LIGHT TIMBER FRAMING MADE EASY.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

400 Pages, 420 Illustrations, Large 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price.....$2.00



This is one of the most useful work manuals Mr. Hodgson has ever turned out, and meets a want often felt by thousands of young and old workmen, especially has this want been felt by carpenters and builders whose work was chiefly in places some distance from the cities or the large towns.

This large new book, "Framing," is written so that any reader can understand every page, every term used and every detail shown. It is entirely free from technicalities, and yet its pages are meaty with instructions to all classes of builders, from the youngest apprentice to the journeyman, as well as the practical builder and the largest contractor.

Practical information is the keynote of "Framing." By practical, we mean information that can be successfully applied to the everyday work of the average carpenter, builder and contractor, as well as the more intricate forms of framing that comes less often, but about which it is necessary to be fully posted. The book presents problems as they have been worked out by well-known architects and the man on the job.

"Framing" is illustrated with over 400 pages of detail drawings, diagrams, detail plates, etc., including many pages of full-page plates never before published, reproducing architects' original drawings, and also details of buildings in all stages of construction.

The many parts into which "Framing" is divided makes it especially valuable, for the reason that each particular form of framing is given separate and distinct treatment, and anyone in search of immediate information on any given subject will not have to search through page after page, but will find the desired information under its own section and chapter heading.

"Framing" is the largest book on this comprehensive subject that has ever been published. No book attempting to treat this important part of construction has ever before so successfully covered the ground. Every phase, part and detail of framing a house, a roof, a barn or other structure is given and treated fully and exhaustively, with complete details showing each successive step to be taken.

"Framing" is practical in that it shows the easiest and most common-sense way to do the work. It does not confine its descriptions to one person's ways or views, but shows many examples of each kind of framing, all of which have been fully tested by experienced workmen and can be relied upon to be absolutely correct.

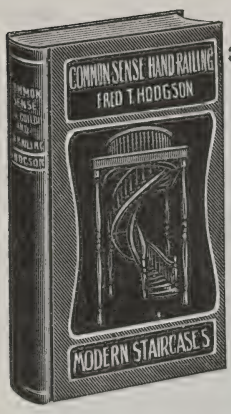
One strong feature of this book on Framing is its simplified descriptions of how to do things. The instructions are clear as daylight. Plain, simple and easy to understand.

One never asks questions of those working with him if he has this practical book. He will be independent,—a specialist,—an expert. Others will ask him questions because he will know all there is to know.

This valuable book on Framing gives the elementary or fundamental principles. Each principle is explained by the best practice. The easiest way to do the work is told, and the most efficient methods are described. Drawings, Diagrams and Plates are used to make the instructions clearly understandable.

To the beginner and to the experienced worker alike this book is invaluable as an instructor and as an ever ready reference manual.

COMMON SENSE STAIR BUILDING AND HAND-RAILING.



By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

300 Pages, 300 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price.....$1.00

This is an excellent work for the young carpenter who is ambitious of becoming an expert in handrailing and stairbuilding, inasmuch as it commences at the very beginning of the art and shows how to lay off a stair on the floor, placing the newels, laying off treads and risers, strings, winders, wells and flyers.

The object of the author is to lead the student step by step, in such a way that he takes in the whole art of stairbuilding before he is aware of it. This is decidedly the best and most practical work on stairbuilding in the market, and just what the untrained workman wants. The part of the book devoted to handrailing exhibits three different methods of laying out and working handrails suitable for any kind of stairs, straight, circular, eliptical, or for stairs with landings, doglegged, newels, or cylinders. These systems of handrailing have been taken from the best sources on the subject, and have been revised and edited in the most careful manner.

MODERN ESTIMATOR AND CONTRACTOR'S GUIDE. FOR PRICING ALL BUILDERS' WORK—WITH MANY TABLES, RULES AND USEFUL MEMORANDA. NEW REVISED EDITION.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

One of the most desirable books for the general builder to have, is a good and reliable work on estimating; and we are certain the book we are now offering, if the large number of favorable testimonials and press notices we have received is any indication, is one of the best and most reliable books on the subject that has ever been published on this continent—or any other for that matter. We have no hesitation whatever in recommending this book to our patrons who want a good work on estimating. The work gives a lengthy and clear explanation of the several methods employed in estimating, among which may be mentioned, "Estimating by comparison," "Estimating by the cubic foot," "Estimating by quantities," "Estimating in detail," and several other systems.

The Mason, the Plasterer, the Bricklayer, the Carpenter, the Excavator, the Painter, the Plumber, and in fact the representative of every trade that has anything to do with building will find rules and methods given in this volume for estimating the cost of work he is tendering for. The rules given in this work show how to measure all kinds of work before and after construction. How to figure on the cost. How to tell the time the work should take to complete. How much work a man should perform in a day, and how much material the work in hand will require. Added to this are rules and memoranda, tables and notes showing quick methods for obtaining results when estimating.

Profusely illustrated, over 300 pages. In addition 50 perspective views and floor plans of low and medium priced houses.

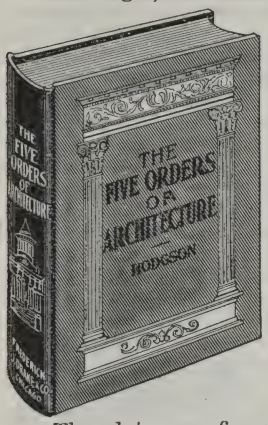
FIVE ORDERS OF ARCHITECTURE.

Compiled and Edited by FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

From the Works of Sir William Chambers, Palladio, Vignola, Gwilt, and Others.

Illustrations, Notes and Essays on the Various Phases of Classical Architecture.
236 Pages, 39 Plates, 12mo, Cloth. Price.....$1.50



This book is intended to be one of instruction; and it contains sufficient information, rules and directions to enable any studious or ambitious young workman to obtain a fair workable knowledge of the design and construction of the Greek and Roman Orders of Architecture. The thirty-nine full-page plates show beautiful examples of classic work, many of them being figured, giving dimensions and correct proportions of the work, so that the student may easily work out a series of designs to suit the work in hand, if it so happens to demand classic treatment. The designs for doors, windows, and details given should prove guides for the proper formation of such work in harmony with the style and character of the main structure; a most important matter in the designing of an edifice of any pretention.

This book, if closely followed, will render it easy for the carpenter, the draftsman, the stone-cutter, or the general builder, to design columns or other details of the orders, in proper style and proportion, in such a manner that even an expert would be obliged to admit the work as almost faultless.

The plates are fine reproductions from the originals, and are in themselves, lessons for instruction in art and education.

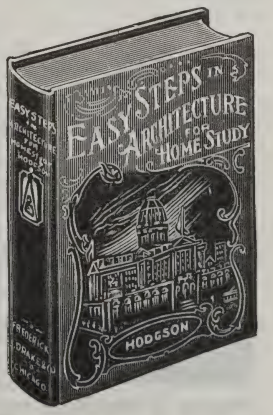
The progress made, and being continually made, by the workmen in every trade and in every department of knowledges, renders it imperative that every man with a scintilla of ambition, should gather in, and foster every scrap of knowledge regarding his daily occupation, and it is with a view of helping those who are making efforts to help themselves, this book is prepared, and we are sure it will commend itself to all workmen who are interested in building because of its unassuming simplicity and clearness.

To know something of the "Orders" is a duty which no builder should overlook, and the volume here presented, will supply all the knowledge required, if thoroughly studied, to satisfy every requirement that any ordinary workman will ever be called upon to make use of.

EASY STEPS TO ARCHITECTURE.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

350 Pages, 230 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price.....$1.50



As every mechanic employed in the building trades must necessarily have some knowledge of architecture, a book of this kind will be found by him to be a great assistance in acquiring such knowledge without a great expenditure of effort. A part of this work has been for years a sort of text-book in schools where architecture is taught, and is a catechism to some extent. The questions and answers are easily understood and as easily remembered.

The second part of the book deals more particularly with architectural styles, while the first part is mostly devoted to the classic orders, Greek and Roman. Full explanation of the latter styles are made, and illustrations show these styles and give a brief history of their growth and decay.

The part on architectural styles is about the most complete ever published in so small a space. The latter is adapted from the German of Rosengarten.

All readers of this book will be satisfied with its contents, and every workman who peruses it with a view of enlarging his knowledge on architecture, will be satisfied that he knows much more when he lays down the book, than he did before he took it up.

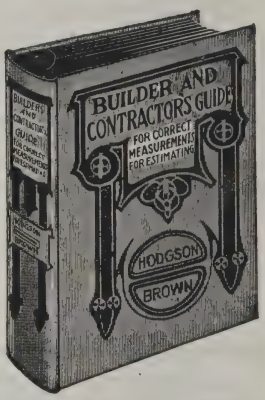
THE BUILDERS' AND CONTRACTORS' GUIDE TO CORRECT MEASUREMENTS.

By FRED T. HODGSON AND W. M. BROWN, C. E.

261 Pages, 45 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price....$1.50



This book is intended to instruct builders and quantity surveyors to obtain correct measurements of areas, solids and lengths and breadths of work wrought, or work to be wrought, for purposes of estimating, or for artisan's pricing in order that the latter may get a just rendering of his claims, or the dealer get an exact statement of any materials he may be called upon to furnish. The question of measurements is a very important one, and it is essential the measurements should be correct and in accordance with the rules laid down by some standard authority, as costly disputes are often incurred because of incorrect, or careless measurements. The present volume is intended in some measure to supply a set of standard rules for taking dimensions, the results of which will be reliable and which all parties concerned can accept without any misgivings.

In introducing this short series of Steel Square Problems and Solutions to American Woodworkers, it is desired to be understood that this little work is not intended in any way to displace the larger works on the subject which were published under the title of Practical Treatise on the uses of the Steel Square.

This little book contains a number of real practical examples, examples the workman will find useful, and such as will prove of service to him in his regular daily routine of labor.

The present book is up-to-date, the latest matter in connection with the "Steel Square and Its Uses" having been considered directly in connection with Handrailing and Stairbuilding. Something never before attempted in any book written on the subject.

This book, prepared by a practical man, for other practical men, appeals directly to the man whose daily occupation is the handling and manipulation of some one or more of the materials that go to make up the title. It is practical, and full of good common sense matter on the subjects of which it treats, it avoids all learned descriptions of the chemical constituents of cement, or the various methods of manufacture. The author and compiler has felt satisfied to serve his readers with the best and most common sense, practical matter he could avail himself of. He has evidently served up a goodly supply of the very best and most useful matter. Indeed, this book contains nearly all the practical matter obtainable, from all sources up to the present time.

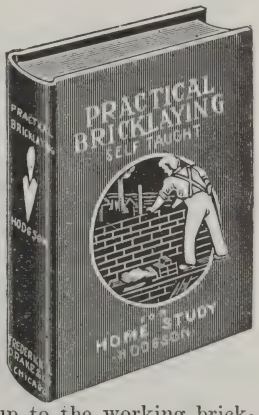
This practical work appeals directly to the workman, whose business it is to make and apply the materials named in the title. As far as it has been possible to avoid chemical descriptions of limes, cements and other materials, and theories of no value to the workman, such has been done, and nothing has been admitted into the pages of the work that does not possess a truly practical character.

Concretes and cements have received special attention, including reinforced concrete, and the latest methods of making and using cement building blocks, laying cement sidewalks, putting in concrete foundations, making cement casts and ornaments, are discussed at length. Plastering and stucco work receive a fair share of considerati n and the best methods of making and using are described in the usual simple manner so characteristic of Mr. Hodgson's style.

PRACTICAL BRICKLAYING—SELF-TAUGHT.

By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

277 Pages, 300 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price.....$1.00



Bricklaying is becoming quite an art, and the "bricklayer" is becoming of as much importance today, as he was in the 16th and 17th centuries. Experience in the work-shop, laboratory, and classroom of years duration has been necessary in the preparation of this work and the subjects contained have been tested by actual use as to their practical value to the person who desires to be up to the latest and best work-shop practice.

The book has been compiled with the idea of making it of value to those who are not in a position to benefit themselves by a trade-school course, as well as those who have had the benefit of a technical education.

Numerous practical examples are given, which help to bring out the fundamental principles involved and also fix the essential points in the reader's mind. It is absolutely necessary now-a-days that, in order to take his proper place among the arts and crafts, he become familiar with all the minutiæ of the trade. As much art can be displayed in brickwork as in any other of the trades, and it is up to the working bricklayer to get all the knowledge possible regarding his calling, so as to enable him to execute any kind of work relating to his trade. This book is designed to help him out in this matter, and discusses the various kinds of bond, ornamental brickwork, damp courses, quality of brickwork, forming of pilasters, quoins, skew arches, splay work, brick joints, chimneys, fireplaces, flues, brick-pavings, and many other classes of brickwork. The work contains 240 fine illustrations.

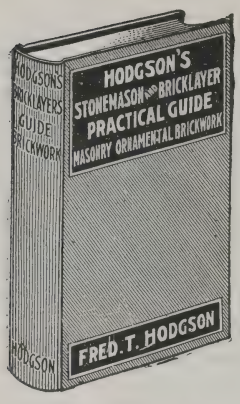
THE TWENTIETH CENTURY BRICKLAYER AND MASON'S ASSISTANT.



By FRED T. HODGSON, F. A. I. C.

This work is a complete cyclopedia of brickbuilding knowledge and being illustrated with over 450 drawings and diagrams of working sketches, describing and showing the various methods of performing all sorts of plain and ornamental work, in brick, and terra-cotta, it will prove invaluable to the working bricklayer, and also to the general builder and contractor. All the best known methods of throwing arches over windows, doors and other openings are given, and manner of working gauged arches and rubbed work, with rules for laying bricks in skew work and in acute and obtuse angles. Brickwork in all its different branches is fully described and discussed. A portion of the work is devoted to stonework, such as the bricklayer is often called upon to execute; the building of rough quarried stone walls for foundations, rustic, rubble, random coursed, snecked rubble, picked polygonal ragwork, etc., etc.

In preparing this book, it has been our constant endeavor to view the matter from the student's standpoint, and to try and anticipate everything that would cause him trouble. The utmost pains have been taken to avoid and correct any and all ambiguous expressions—both those due to faulty rhetoric and those due to insufficiency of statement or explanation. As the best way to make a statement, explanation, or description clear is to give a picture or a diagram in connection with it, illustrations have been used almost without limit. The illustrations have in all cases been adapted to the requirements of the text, and projections and sections or outline, partially shaded, or full-shaded perspectives have been used, according to which will best produce the desired results.

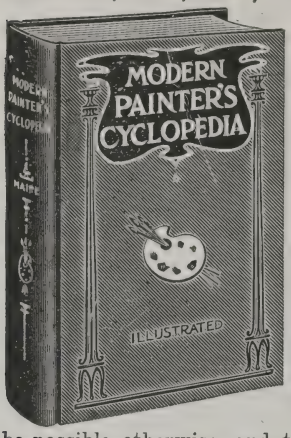
THE MODERN PAINTER'S CYCLOPEDIA.

By F. MAIRE, HEAD INSTRUCTOR AT THE CHICAGO SCHOOL OF PAINTING, DECORATING AND PAPERHANGING

Illustrated, 12mo, Cloth, Decorative Cover. Price.....$1.50



It is an entirely new book on painting. It is not a revised edition of an older book of nearly the same title. It treats its subject matter in an up-to-date way, discarding the old methods where the new are better. The headings of the subject matter are the only remains of the older book.

Under each head is given all the more important details concerning its subject matter. The more important subjects are treated more at length than are those of secondary importance only.

The manner of writing up the subject matter, while it may not be new in some other publications devoted to the study of manual trades, is certainly new as applied to any heretofore published which treats upon paints and painting.

As much as possible many tedious repetitions have been saved by having arranged all details throughout the book in numbered paragraphs, so that, whenever it is needed, reference is made to such or such numbered paragraphs, which give the additional information. This feature saves considerable space, making it possible to cover the subject more fully than it would be possible otherwise, and to condense, within its pages, much more information than could have been given in any other way.

At the end of every subject-head will be found "Questions," each of which are numbered and which appertain to a similarly numbered paragraph of text, where the answer to the question asked will be found. It is hoped this will be of great help to apprentices or students who are endeavoring to obtain a better understanding of the painting trade, as it will enable them to search out the answers, and better still, to review what they have just read and to give the answers from memory, as it will help to fix the information gained more permanently.

It is also hoped that this arrangement will not only prove useful to young or old students who are studying at home, but that it may become a welcome adjunct to instructors and teachers in the many industrial schools which are being established in nearly every part of the country. It will enable them to impart information in classes, if they so desire it, and it will save them having to repeat much of the information contained in the book by word of mouth, which they have been forced to do heretofore.

THE RED BOOK SERIES OF TRADE SCHOOL MANUALS.

By F. MAIRE, DIRECTOR OF THE CHICAGO SCHOOL OF PAINTING, DECORATING AND PAPERHANGING

6 Volumes, 16mo, Full Cloth. Each Illustrated. Price, Each.....$0.60

The author being acquainted with many of the European and nearly all of the American Manual Training Schools, where painting is taught, feeling the need of a treatise which would help the student or instructors in imparting knowledge, has prepared the following manuals:

Exterior Painting, Wood, Iron and Brick.
Interior Painting, Water and Oil Colors.
Colors, What They Are and What to Expect From Them.
Graining and Marbling.
Carriage Painting.
The Wood Finisher.

The arrangement of the above volumes is such that the student is gradually advanced upon the branches treated and the questions at the end of each lesson will become an index of reference which he will find useful. Instructors will surely welcome these valuable manuals, as they will save them numberless repetitions. The student who cannot leave home to attend a school will find his task of learning the various branches treated greatly facilitated by procuring these volumes.

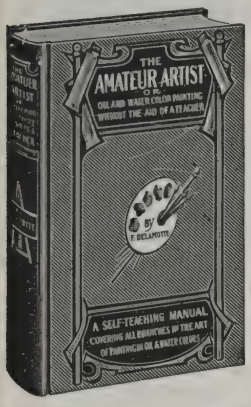
THE AMATEUR ARTIST, OR OIL AND WATER COLOR PAINTING WITHOUT THE AID OF A TEACHER.

By F. DELAMOTTE

Large 12mo, Cloth, 160 Pages, Fully Illustrated. Price.....$1.00



The aim of this book is to instruct the student in the fundamental principles underlying those branches of art of which it treats and to teach the application of those principles in a clear and concise manner. The knowledge it contains is available alike to the amateur whose only desire is to beautify the home and to pass pleasant hours at agreeable work, and also to those talented ones who lack the opportunities afforded by art schools and teachers who are out of reach.

This very late and complete work contains instruction in landscape and flower painting in oil and water colors, crayon or pastel painting, china painting, pen and ink drawing, flat sheet metal work, pyrography or wood burning, together with full list and description of all materials and implements.

Unlike other works on the market, it is brought up to date—no obsolete branches being dragged in, to fill out space.

Each chapter contains a complete list of materials and equipment, and instruction enough to develop natural ability to a point where the student may continue, independent of further aid, and trusting to his own individuality of style.

Flower and landscape paintings in water-colors and oils are treated most comprehensively and entertainingly by masters of the art.

That portion devoted to the art of pastels on paper and on hide is from an eminent English authority.

Material is found in the pen and ink section to equip a Gibson or a McCutcheon. And no branch of art, pays so well today as that of the illustrator and the caricaturist.

The latest idea of the best American teachers of China decorating are embodied in the chapter on this subject. And there is more instruction in it than one can receive in several lessons under our great "ten-dollar-an-hour" teacher.

That charming branch of home decoration known as pyrography or burnt-wood etching is fully dwelt upon.

And the latest designs and methods in repoussé and cut out brass work lead the pupil into the field of the most fascinating of the popular crafts of the day.

In addition to this change of form the authors have endeavored to keep the book up to the level of the science of the day by inserting the most important discoveries which have been made during the last seven years.

Thorough and complete instructions are given regarding how, when, and under what circumstances any particular rule, formula, or process should be applied; and whenever possible one or more examples, such as would be likely to arise in actual practice—together with their solutions—are given to illustrate and explain its application.

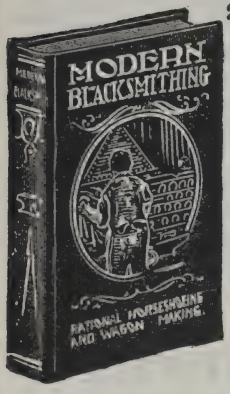
MODERN BLACKSMITHING, RATIONAL HORSE-SHOEING AND WAGON MAKING.

By J. G. HOLMSTROM

200 Pages, 75 Illustrations, 12mo, Cloth Binding. Price.....$1.00

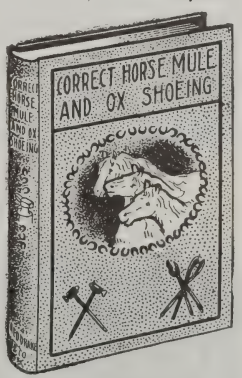


This valuable work is written by a man having thirty years practical experience. Elementary rules are employed, thus avoiding the more technical terms, rendering this treatise practical and more valuable to all who have use for it. Even the oldest blacksmith or wagon maker will find many helpful suggestions, and any young man can master the principles of these two useful arts by a careful study of this book. The rules and recipes will be found of great value to farmers, horseshoers, wagon makers, machinists, liverymen, well drillers, manufacturers, as well as amateurs and young men on the farm. No other mechanic is required to turn out the variety of work and with so few tools, and the author has endeavored to provide from his daily experience of over a quarter of a century, a safe, reliable guide for the experienced workman, as well as the apprentice. No blacksmith or wagon worker should be without this work. A valuable feature of the book and one which all good blacksmiths will appreciate, is the section devoted to the erection and fitting up of a model shop. Detailed instructions are given together with plans for the laying out, and building of a shop that will be satisfactory in every respect. As the shop is the place where the smith spends most of his time, he should be just as careful in building it as the sensible housekeeper is in the construction of her kitchen. Valuable suggestions are also given regarding the location of the forge, anvil, coal box, tool table and work bench, together with clear and explicit instructions for the making of the various tools used by the blacksmith. The book also contains reliable and useful tables giving the weights of iron in the various forms in which it is handled by the blacksmith, as for instance, the weight of a lineal foot of square, round, or flat bar iron in all the sizes ordinarily used by the smith.

SCIENTIFIC HORSE, MULE AND OX SHOEING.

By J. G. HOLMSTROM, AUTHOR "MODERN BLACKSMITHING"

Cloth, with Special Cover Design. Price.....$1.00



A standard treatise adapted to the demand of veterinarians, farmers and the amateur horseshoer. Illustrated. The book is concisely written, no long articles over the experiments of others, but gives the best methods known up to date.

Although there are principles laid down in this book that will stand so long as the horse is a horse, the author does not lay any claim to infallibility or perfection. He has simply laid a foundation upon which the ironer of horses' feet may build and develop a perfect structure.

Among some of the valuable contents are: Anatomy of the Foot, The Shoe and How to Make It, Right and Wrong Filing, How to Nail the Shoe, How to Fit and Recalk Old Shoes, Interfering, Preparing the Foot for Shoeing, Shoeing a Trotter, Mule Shoeing, Ox Shoeing, Diseases of the Horse, Hot and Cold Fitting, How to Shoe Vicious Horses, Kneesprung, Stringhalt, Contraction, Sand Cracks, etc. Many of the fine illustrations used are reproduced by permission from books issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Although horse nails are seldom, if ever made by hand in these modern days of machinery, still every smith should know how to make them in case an emergency should arise, therefore, instructions are given, and illustrations regarding the making and correct shaping of horse nails. All of the various tools and appliances required by the blacksmith in the shoeing of horses, mules or oxen are clearly illustrated, and detailed instructions given regarding their proper use, and these instructions fully cover not only the normally shaped feet of the healthy animal, but also apply to the numerous cases of mis-shapen, and diseased feet of horses with which the smith has to deal, and this feature of the book will prove to be of especial value for the reason that it is made plain by clear and easily understood illustrations in every case. Receipts and detailed instructions are given for the cure of the many diseases to which horses and other draft animals are subject.

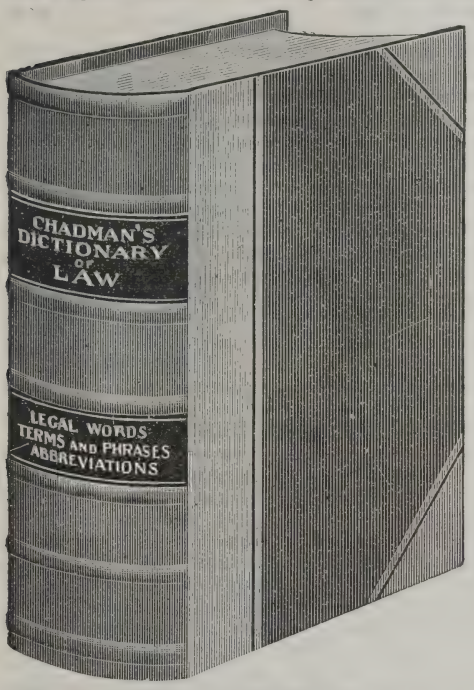
CHADMAN'S DICTIONARY OF LAW.

By HON. CHARLES E. CHADMAN, LL. M., AUTHOR OF CHADMAN'S CYCLOPEDIA OF LAW

600 Pages, Bound in Three-Quarter Law Sheep. Price.....$6.00



Containing legal words, terms and phrases, a concise dictionary for law students, a ready reference for practitioners, a practical law knowledge for business men, a manual for the wide-awake merchant, a home and office dictionary.

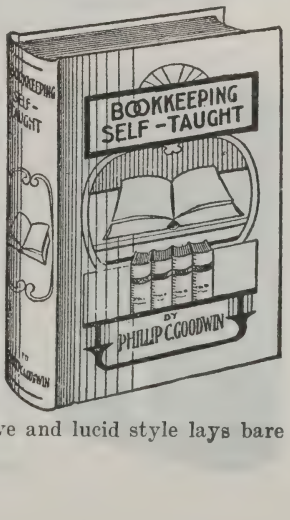
Comprising within its scope an explanation of the elements of jurisprudence, avoiding an encyclopedic form, furnishing the essence of law in ordinary language, defining words, expressions, maxims, and abbreviations that have special signification to the law.

To put within the scope of a single volume an explanation of all the varied legal terms, phrases and maxims that have developed with our legal system, a somewhat arbitrary selection has had to be made, but by applying the space usually given to lengthy monographs on a particular word or topic, and confining the scope of the work to a purely legal dictionary, the heretofore bulky volumes devoted to such a treatise are greatly curtailed. Judge Chadman's definitions are based on practical utility, consisting of direct statements representing an honest endeavor to unite broad-minded scholarship, with simplicity and an accuracy that makes a new and modernized work that compares favorably with other dictionaries. Obsolete words having been omitted there is, thereby accomplished the end sought, a book of simple words and legal terms used in general law that are both practical and useful, presented in onevolume in as compact a form as possible, with a view to convenience in handling.

BOOKKEEPING SELF-TAUGHT.

By PHILLIP C. GOODWIN

12mo, Cloth $1.00



Few, if any, of the technical works which purport to be self-instructing, have just the claims made for them, and invariably the student either becomes discouraged and abandons his purpose and aim, or he is compelled to enlist the offices of a professional teacher, which in the great majority of instances is impracticable when considered in relation to the demands upon time and the condition of life to which the great, busy public is subjected.

Mr. Goodwin's treatise on bookkeeping is an entirely new departure from all former methods of self-instruction and one which can be studied systematically and alone by the student with quick and permanent results, or taken up in leisure moments with an absolute certainty of acquiring the science in a very short time and with little effort. The book is a marvel, both of skill and simplicity. Every feature and every detail leading to the climax of scientific perfection are so thoroughly complete in this logical procedure and the analysis so thorough and so deftly made that the self-teaching student is led by almost imperceptible, but sure and certain, steps to the basic principles of the science, which the author in a most comprehensive and lucid style lays bare to intelligence of even the most mediocre order.

WORDS AS THEY LOOK

By WM. T. C. HYDE

Containing Over 300 Pages and 25,000 Words. Cloth.....$0.50

A new and infallible method of breaking oneself of the habit of misspelling certain troublesome words, and without study or the aid of a teacher. It is based upon what is known as the "visual method," now generally admitted by the foremost educators to be the quickest and best method of acquiring correct English orthography. When writing, and in doubt as to how a word should be spelled, you simply refer to that word in the Memorizer, note how it looks in this book, and the brain will unconsciously retain a mental picture of it for all time. The principle is precisely the same as that involved in "remembering faces." Many writers with liberal educations are weak in spelling words that are in common, everyday use. An invaluable book for the desk, for typewritists and for Business Colleges.

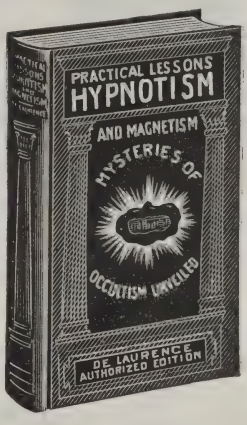
PRACTICAL LESSONS IN HYPNOTISM AND MAGNETISM.

By L. W. de LAURENCE

Paper Covers $0.50
Cloth, ... 1.00



Lecturer and demonstrator at the de Laurence Institute of Hypnotism and Occult Philosophy, Chicago; author of "Medical Hypnosis," (physician's edition); "The Bible Defended," etc.; student of the Orient in practical psychology, metaphysics, alchemy, cabala, occult and natural philosophy. This is the author's latest and best work. It gives the only course which starts the student out upon a plain, common-sense basis of hypnotizing people. Each of the many chapters contains practical lessons prepared especially for self-instruction, a feature never before offered the public. Many books published on hypnotism pretend to teach the student without first mastering the real principles and entirely ignoring the constituent elements of psychology. Prof. de Laurence teaches a method which will enable any student to go right into a promiscuous audience without any subjects whom he has previously hypnotized, and give successful hypnotic demonstrations. He has demonstrated the fact that anybody who can read can learn his methods as contained in this valuable book; the instructions are plain and the methods are the result of long experience, careful research and much study. Thousands have mastered his instructions as taught in this book, and are now successfully applying it in their daily vocations.

This wonderful, world-famed book tells how to succeed in life and rise in the world.

It enables the reader to inspire others to do things—right things;—and teaches how to acquire self-confidence, and how to become influential.

By the power of Hypnotism many great men have succeeded because they were able to influence others. The possession of this self-acquired power makes it possible to command respect and attention; to deal with big affairs and to become a person of distinction.

This marvelous book teaches the secret of achievement. It tells how persons may by this easy, simple and sure means grasp opportunities and make up for deficiencies. It is a stepping stone to Power and Plenty, Fame and Distinction.

The essays on auctioneers' remarks, opening remarks, description of goods, newspaper, poster, handbill and circular letter advertising are unsurpassed. This book starts you on the right road—it gives ideas, and is the only thoroughly practical work of this kind published. Size, 5x7 inches.

Befure sup'rintindint—that's Flannigan—
Gits a whack at that very same sin agin.
Frum Finnigin to Flannigan

"They's nobody hurrted," says Finnigin,
"But repoorts must be made t' Flannigan."

BEN KING'S VERSE

This book has had a larger sale than any book of humorous verse in recent years. Ben King's work is unique in American literature. His humor and pathos alike are different from that of any other author.

If I Should Die Tonight

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and say,
Weeping and heartsick o'er my lifeless clay—
If I should die tonight
And you should come in deepest grief and woe
And say, "Here's that ten dollars that I owe"—
I might arise in my large white cravat
And say, "What's that?"

If I should die tonight
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel—
I say, if I should die tonight
And you should come to me, and there and then
Just even hint 'bout payin' me that ten,
I might arise the while;
But I'd drop dead again.

FUNK, ISAAC K., LL.D.

The Next Step in Evolution. The Present Step—A Study. The author believes that "Christ came the first time into men's vision by coming on the plane of their senses; He comes the second time into men's vision by lifting them up to his plane of spiritual comprehension. It means a new step in the evolution of man." 16mo, Cloth, frontispiece, 106 pp. 50 cents.

The Psychic Riddle. A record of psychic investigation since the publication of "The Widow's Mite and Other Psychic Phenomena," giving new typical cases of the several classes of phenomena. 12mo, Cloth, 243 pp., indexed. $1.00.

Without bias one way or the other, Dr. Funk neither condemns the spiritualistic explanation, nor accepts as conclusive the apparent evidence of a future life disclosed by his painstaking investigations. His point of view is that of an honest, intelligent reporter of things that he has seen and heard, or that have been fully substantiated, by testimony derived from unimpeachable sources. . . . The whole book is, in fact, a suggestive and highly important addition to the rapidly increasing number of treatises on this subject.—Boston Transcript.

The Widow's Mite. And Other Psychic Phenomena. This book brings psychic investigations and the best thought concerning them down to date. It presents hundreds of experiences along psychic lines, and reasons most carefully concerning them. It gives fairly all sides. The author says: "I say neither 'No' nor 'Yes' to telepathy, the subjective-mind theory, spiritualism, etc., for I don't know. I simply give the facts I and others have seen, and ask 'What is it?'" The answers of nearly forty of the world's best-known psychologists are here given with these marvelous experiences of a quarter of a century's careful investigations of psychic phenomena. Large 8vo, Cloth, 538 pages. $2.00.

In this book is a quarter of a century of research in spiritualism, telepathy, and forces.—The World, New York.

GRASSET, JOSEPH, M.D. (Professor of Clinical Medicine, University of Montpellier, France.)

Marvels Beyond Science. (L'Occultisme Hier et Aujourd'hui.) A record of progress in the reduction of occult phenomena to a scientific basis. With a preface by Emile Faguet of the French Academy. Authorized English translation by René Jacques Tubeuf, Fellow of the University of Paris. Emile Faguet, of the French Academy, says of the present work, which deals with the success of scientific investigation in reducing occult-phenomena to a scientific basis, that Dr. Grasset has succeeded thus far in his efforts to do what sailors do when they "calculate the reckoning of the ship." He has aimed scrupulously to mark the boundary between things already known and those which still remain beyond our understanding. He believes that phenomena still regarded occult will, in a comparatively short space of time, be included in the catalog of accepted scientific principles. Among these are mental suggestion, direct intercourse of thought, articles removed without touch, sight through opaque substances, telepathy, premonitions, materializations, etc. 8vo. $1.75.

This is the only literature on this particular classification., 8vo, Cloth, 415 pp. $2.50.

Well written and destined to become the expert's vade mecum in future medico-legal discussions.—The Nation, New York.

JENKS, PROF. J. W., Ph.D.

The Immigration Problem. By Prof. J. W. Jenks, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of Government and Director of the Division of Public Affairs, N. Y. University, and W. Jett Lauck, Ph.D., former Associate Professor of Economics and Politics, Washington and Lee University. Dr. Jenks was an active member of and Professor Lauck was officially connected with the United States Immigration Commission, appointed in 1907, which gave four years of searching work to the problem "How does immigration affect American civilization now, and what is its influence likely to be in the future?" This book was based upon the report of that Commission, as finally presented in forty-two volumes. This Third Edition conforms to the changes made in that report, and also covers results of the United States Census of 1910, not available when the first edition was printed. A colored diagram and other new matter add positive interest and value. Third Edition, Revised, Enlarged, and perfected in accordance with the latest official figures and facts. Cloth, 8vo. $1.75.

This is a most excellent discussion of the Immigration Problem, full of fresh, vital information. Both authors were earnest, conscientious workers on the Immigration Commission. The volume ought to have a wide circulation.—Hon. John L. Burnett, U. S. Representative from Alabama, Chairman of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

An admirable summary of the facts brought forth by the researches of the Immigration Commission and the conclusions and suggestions of the authors are at once comprehensive, cautious, sound. The book is one that every student of the issues of public policy in America must become familiar with. —Prof. F. H. Giddings. Department of Social Science, Columbia University.

We have here the most solid basis of reasoning on this great subject that we have ever had. The authors seem to have tried, and successfully, to furnish materials to persons of all views and parties for an independent judgment. I am using the book in my class in the study of Urban Communities with great satisfaction.—Prof. Charles R. Henderson, Ph.D., D.D., Department of Sociology and Anthropology, University of Chicago.

How to Read and Declaim. Mr. Kleiser aims, in this work, to present a course of instruction in reading and declamation, with his prime object the cultivation of taste and refinement. He maintains that the foundation of all good speaking lies in naturalness and simplicity. Few technical terms are employed in Mr. Kleiser's teaching—the fewest possible. Instead of using an arbitrary system, he resorts to what may be called the suggestive method, believing that distinctly better results can be achieved. The book presents two courses of study—first, preparatory; second, advanced. Then are given selections for use in practice. These have been chosen from standard authors and comprise both poetry and prose. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25.

How to Argue and Win. The author gives different suggestions for training the mind to accuracy of thought and in the power of clear and effective statements. His method is thoroughly practical, being, in fact, the result of his experience in teaching men how to "think on their feet." 12mo, Cloth. $1.25.

Great Speeches and How to Make Them. Mr. Kleiser, in this work, aims to set forth, not only the sources of the power exercised by famous masters of oratory, but to point out methods by which young men may acquire and develop the art. His long experience as a teacher, and his own gifts as a speaker, not to mention his exhaustive studies of the lives and speeches of great authors, have fitted him for the preparation of a work that should make strong appeal. And there is a chapter on types of orators and oratory. The reader is supplied with many specimen speeches which are recommended for study. First comes a group of after-dinner speeches, then others such as communicative, didactic, eulogistic, inaugural, political and miscellaneous speeches. 12mo, Cloth. $1.25.

LODGE, HENRY CABOT, LL.D. (and others)

The Best of the World's Classics (Restricted to Prose). Henry Cabot Lodge, Editor-in-Chief; Francis W. Halsey, Associate Editor. As Senator Lodge sets forth in his Introduction, this work represents "an attempt to give, from all periods and languages of Western civilization, examples of what is best and most memorable in their prose literature." In this endeavor, personal preferences have been suppressed and general principles followed on broad and enduring lines. The term "classics" has been used, not in a narrow or technical sense, but rather in the sense of Thoreau, who defined them as "the noblest recorded thoughts of mankind." Examples, therefore, have been taken from great writings which have moved and influenced thought; from writers historically important, and from works representative of the various literatures of the world, including specimens from the masters of English prose. Senator Lodge's Introduction is an essay, notable in itself, comprizing, as it does, twenty-five pages of the work. 10 volumes, illustrated with frontispieces. Bound in Cloth, Half Leather, and Full Leather. Sold only by subscription.

Library Edition (Edition de Luxe). Ten volumes, bound in three-quarters Green Morocco, gilt tops, gold lettering, extra wide margins, large type, over 100 choice illustrations, text paper extra heavy. 8vo, in a box. $25.00.

FEATURES OF THE WORK AND ARRANGEMENT OF THE VOLUMES.

In the ordinary sense of the term the "People's Bible" is not a Biblical Commentary. The scope is broader. It is a work not only for the minister and student, but for the people. It is not intended to take the place of verbal or critical commentaries. It is not a series of sermons. There are no sermons, as such, in the entire work. The volumes are arranged as follows: 1. Genesis; 2. Exodus; 3. Leviticus–Numbers, xxv.; 4. Numbers, xxvi.–Deuteronomy; 5. Joshua–Judges, v.; 6. Judges, vi.–I. Samuel, xvii.; 7. I. Samuel, xviii.–I. Kings, xiii.; 8. I. Kings, xv.–I. Chronicles, ix.; 9. I. Chronicles, x.–II. Chronicles, xx.; xxi.; 10. II. Chronicles, xxi.–Esther; 11. Job. 12. The Psalms; 13. Proverbs; 14. Ecclesiastes–Isaiah, xxvi.; 15. Isaiah, xvii.–Jeremiah, xix.; 16. Jeremiah, xx.–Daniel; 17. Hosea–Malachi; 18. 19, 20. Matthew; 21. Mark–Luke; 22. John; 23, 24, 25. The Acts; 26. Romans–Corinthians–Galatians; 27. Ephesians–Revelation; 28. Index volume to the entire work.

*†The Pulpit Bible. The entire text of the Bible is printed in large, clear type, with bright and suggestive illustrations in an ample margin opposite each significant verse. The author's notes alone run to over 750,000 words. The notes are all original and they indicate the special pulpit use of each verse (where available) in the Bible. Each note is thus a suggestion for a sermon. Where space has not permitted a sufficient treatment of any passage, a copious and most carefully detailed index indicates in which of Dr. Parker's other books the particular interpretation is provided. 4to, Full Morocco, 1,351 pp., one vol. $15.00.

*†Studies in Texts. Six volumes containing new sermons, outlines, suggestions, etc., designed to be of value to preachers, Bible students, teachers, and other active religious workers, and useful for home and family readings. 6 vols., 12mo, Cloth. $1.50 per vol.

They are marked by all the doctor's originality, his fine spiritual insight, majesty of expression, wealth of illustration, and forcefulness of application. Preachers of the gospel cannot do better than add this book to their libraries.—Primitive Methodist.

PREACHER'S COMPLETE HOMILETIC COMMENTARY ON THE OLD AND THE NEW TESTAMENT, THE

With Critical and Exegetical Notes. This commentary, consisting of thirty-two royal octavo volumes (Old Testament 21 volumes, New Testament 11 volumes), and having over eighteen thousand pages, contains an exposition, wholly in English, on every paragraph or verse of the entire Bible that can be used to advantage in the preparation of sermons. With copious indexes to each volume and an index volume to the entire series. Among the contributors are: Rev. J. S. Exell, M.A.; Rev. W. Burrows, B.A.; Thomas Robinson, D.D.; Rev. J. W. Harris; Rev. D. G. Watt, M.A.; Rev. Geo. Barlow; Rev. Robert Tuck; Thomas Whitelaw, D.D.; Rev. Henry J. Foster, etc.

Preacher's Complete Homiletic Commentary on the Old Testament. By twenty distinguished homilists. 8vo, Cloth, over 12,000 pp., 20 vols. (and index volume), complete, $60.00; per vol., $3.00.

Preacher's Complete Homiletic Commentary on the New Testament. Uniform size and style with the Homiletic Commentary on the Old Testament. Cloth, 10 vols. (and index volume), 6,000 pp., $30.00; per vol., $3.00.

FEATURES OF THE CONTENTS.

IT BRINGS TO THE PREACHER'S ATTENTION hundreds of texts heretofore almost wholly passed over by the pulpit. Spurgeon, in his Commenting and Commentaries, says: "We have next to nothing on Kings." In the Homiletic Commentary we have on Kings alone 743 treatments of texts. The same is true of other books, as Jeremiah. New expositions, critical notes, illustrations, etc., are poured in upon neglected texts, and additional light thrown upon old texts.

IT IS THE ONLY COMMENTARY that supplies a sermonic treatment of homiletic suggestion on every verse of both the Old and New Testaments that can be used to advantage as a sermon text.

IT CONCENTRATES THE LIGHT of all ages and of all countries on the text.

IT IS WHOLLY FREE FROM DENOMINATIONAL BIAS, being strictly evangelical.

IT SUGGESTS THOUSANDS OF THEMES AND ILLUSTRATIONS for sermons, also many hundreds of useful illustrations.

IT THROWS NEW LIGHT upon the present controversies over the Old Testament.

THE COMMENTARY IS WHOLLY IN ENGLISH, avoiding Hebrew and Greek, except here and there in the critical notes.

THE INDEXES are useful and practical.

His aim is to place medicine on a rational basis, whence bacteriological aberrations have been endeavoring to banish it. This book treats on morbid proliferation of specialism in medicine and a one-sided organotherapy; it opposes unjustified and unwarranted claims of the bacteriologists, aiming at tuberculin and the legion of serums. help to the preacher, student, or other Christian worker. In 12 volumes. 12mo, Cloth. $1.50 per volume; $18.00 per set.

FEATURES OF THE CONTENTS.

The plan of the work, in general, gives under each text, each being in its consecutive order from Genesis to Revelation: (1) Outline of important sermons by eminent preachers which exist only in manuscript or periodicals, and are thus inaccessible; or, (2) less full outlines of sermons which have appeared in volumes that are not well known or easily obtained; or, (3) reference to or very brief outlines of sermons which appear in popular volumes such as are likely to be in a preacher's library; and (4) full references to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where any help is given to the elucidation of the text. Thus the preacher, having chosen his text, has only to refer to the Sermon Bible to find some of the best outlines and suggestions on it and very helpful references to all the aids available. STANDARD DICTIONARY, THE FUNK & WAGNALLS NEW

A new Creation from A to Z. Four years of time and more than $1,450,000 of money were spent in its production. Over 380 Editors and Specialists were engaged upon it. It has about 3,000 pages; gives over 450,000 living vocabulary terms; has dozens of important features not found in any other dictionary; and is as far ahead of the old "Standard" as that was ahead of every other dictionary twenty years ago.

There is no doubt about its being the greatest dictionary of the English language that has ever been published. I prize it very highly, and so far as I am concerned it will be given a place in the Oklahoma schools.—M. H. Duncan, Member State Board of Education, Oklahoma.

You have given us a biographical dictionary, a geographical gazetteer, and an encyclopedia under the guise of an English dictionary. Your dictionary will for me supersede several dictionaries that I have been obliged to use together in order to gain the information furnished in this one volume.—W. H. P. Faunce, D.D., LL.D., President Brown University, Providence, R. I.

Very convenient. The inclusion of proper names and abbreviations in one alphabetical order with the other words is a convenience in a dictionary of this size.—The Sun, New York.

As in the New Unabridged Standard, the words in this work are arranged in one alphabetical order. Proper names, abbreviations, prefixes, suffixes, etc., will all be found in their proper alphabetical sequence in the vocabulary. The Comprehensive Standard is a model book for ordinary desk purposes and for the pupil's book-bag.—The World, New York.

The appendix includes: faulty diction; rules for spelling; proper names; glossary of foreign words, phrases, etc., current in English literature; symbolic flowers and gems; abbreviations and contractions, etc.

The man who compressed the big Standard into this small volume had a job on his hands of which he acquitted himself with a good deal of credit. Placed within reach of the writer's hand, where it belongs, and where it will always be found, it saves some trotting to the larger field and often serves as good a purpose.—Herald, Rochester, N. Y.

For those who possess the unabridged Standard Dictionary and for those who do not, this compact volume will prove a treasure. It is not always convenient to consult the larger book, and with the concise dictionary at hand it is often unnecessary. It follows the general plan of the more imposing work, and will render valuable service.—The Christian World, Cleveland, O.

A book that should appeal to all persons who need a handy dictionary—one just large enough to drop conveniently into the pocket.—The Baltimore American.

STANDARD FAMILY PHYSICIAN, THE

This work is a translation and American edition of Reissig's "Das Aerztliche Hausbuch," a work by thirty or forty leading German medical specialists. It has been edited and Americanized by equally eminent authorities in this country. While the text of the work is couched in clear, plain language, making it easily understood by the layman, the work is absolutely authoritative and is officially indorsed by the Congress of Physicians. It is the first medical book that has been compiled in a popular manner by recognized professors and physicians. It treats of the construction of the body; the origin, the diagnosis, and treatment of diseases; the relation of physician and patient, etc. In the second part it gives in about one thousand pages alphabetically arranged all that is worth knowing about the origin, the course of treatment, and prevention of diseases; about nursing, nutrition; the several kinds of treatment (water, light, air, massage); first help in case of accident; the relation between vocation of the patient and the disease, and many other things. Nearly 500 illustrations, including 24 colored plates scientifically executed. Two volumes, Buckram. $15.00 per set. Three-quarter Morocco, $20.00.

I have examined with care the Standard Family Physician, and I am glad to recognize in it a work which the medical profession can safely endorse. I hope it will meet with a large sale, and thus help to dissipate the deplorable ignorance of the masses regarding hygiene and health which is daily brought to the attention of this department. No home should be considered complete without it.—Thomas Darlington, M.D., Pres. Board of Health, New York City.
